A RIDE TO THE TOP

Clark Natwick of Pacifica has earned himself a spot on the U.S. Cyclo Cross Team by winning the junior national championships. He received the jersey for winning the title. It's his ticket for free entry to national races next year.

Junior Cyclo-Cross Champ

Serramonte Student In World Competition

By JANET PARKER

Clark Natwick has been so busy riding his bicycle he hasn't had time to get a driver's license.

But that hasn't stopped the Pacifica youth from traveling all over the United States to become the junior cyclo-cross champion.

On Nov. 27, Natwick reached the goal he set for himself a year ago.

He won the junior title in the U. S. National Cyclo-Cross Championships on his 10-speed bicycle in Sun River, Ore.

The title has earned the Serramonte High School senior a spot on the three-member U. S. cyclo-cross team which includes a trip to Germany for world competition in January.

He'll join two senior competitors from Santa Cruz and Berkeley.

Natwick, in training for weeks, runs four miles a day and rides 200 miles a week. His bushy, blond hair pulled under his racing hat, Natwick sprints out of his Linda Mar driveway for 1½ hour round-trips to Lake Merced, over San Bruno Mountain and back home.

A mere jaunt for a young man who has been cycle racing steadily for the past two years.

"He always was a good bike rider," his mother, Lliiane Natwick, said. "He never needed training wheels on his bicycle."

Natwick said cyclo-cross is a challengeing and colorful sport striving for more spectator popularity in the United States.

DC Acts on Taxicabs

Taxicabs are expected to be operating on the streets of Daly City again within the next few days, following adoption of an emergency ordinance Monday by the City Council.

The ordinance authorizes the chief of police to issue temporary permits to cab drivers until a more permanent solution to the current cab problem in the city can be reached.

Last week, Yellow Cab Co. of San Francisco, the only company operating in Daly City, shut down operations throughout the state.

Since that time a number of handicapped, seniors and other citizens who depend on taxis for transportation, have been left stranded, the council was told Monday.

City Atty. Albert Polonsky said the urgency ordinance would grant temporary permits for at least 30 days, but not more than 90 days, to authorized taxi companies.

Most officials feel a permanent solution to the Yellow Cab Co. shutdown will be reached within the next few weeks.

Yellow's financial collapse left some two dozen Daly City residents without work.

Joe Heinz, of San Francisco, acted as a spokesman for about 20 out-of-work Yellow Cab drivers attending the Monday meeting at City Hall.

Heinz asked the city to assist unemployed drivers in securing work with any new company operating in the city.

He pointed out that the former Yellow Cab drivers already have special permits to drive cabs in Daly City and "they know the city and the people who use the cabs."

A Daly City resident, Florence Kelly, of 76 Vendome St., said she has used Yellow Cab for years "and now I just don't know what to do."

She too suggested the city help the drivers get jobs with any new company coming into the city.

But Polonsky cautioned the city about "going into the cab business," noting, "We cannot force anyone to hire these people."

Mayor Anthony Giammona expressed sympathy for the former employes of the defunct company, promising to do everything he could to assist them.

He suggested Heinz leave a list of eligible cab drivers with the city.

Thomas Cotton, general manager of Yellow Cab Co. of South San Francisco, told the council he had 10 cabs available for night use and 10 for day use.

Yellow Cab of South San Francisco is not affiliated with Yellow Cab of San Francisco.

Unless San Francisco Yellow Cab Co. is back in operation in Daly City soon, the city will hold a public hearing to determine whether the 25 permits issued to the company should be cancelled.

Under the urgency ordinance rates will be not more than $1.10 for the first 1/11 of a mile and ten cents per 1/11th of a mile thereafter.

Ottoboni Sentence Reduced

A judge Friday decided that answering the telephone and filing papers for 600 hours is punishment enough for ex-Colma Police Chief Raymond Ottoboni since his father needs him to drive him around and care for him.

Superior Court Judge Frank Piombo ruled that the 35-year-old Ottoboni need not serve 90 days in county jail as was initially ordered.

Instead, the former chief and ex-Colma councilman will perform office tasks for the San Mateo County Probation Department's South San Francisco office six hours per day.

Ottoboni had pleaded guilty to felony election fraud violations charging him with falsely registering persons to vote for him in last March's Colma municipal election.

His father, veteran Colma Councilman Raymond D. Ottoboni, 71, pleaded guilty to misdemeanors for his role in the same scheme and was fined $650.

Subsequently, the older Ottoboni had heart sergery.

The son's lawyer, Zerne P. Haning III of San Carlos, argued successfully that Ottoboni was needed to help care and drive for his father because of the illness.

Judge Piombo said that the illness of the father and the fact that Ottoboni's 70-year-old mother also is facing heart sergery constituted his reasons for modifying the sentence, thereby substituting public service work for jail.

The judge left intact his $750 fine against Ottoboni, as well as probation time.

'Affirmative Action' a Daly City 'Hot Potato'

"We've got a real hot potato here," George Saeger, president of Local 919, American Federation of Municipal Employes, told the City Council of Daly City Monday.

Saeger was talking about the city's proposed affirmative action program, which is scheduled for public hearing on Dec. 13 at 8 p.m.

Ironically, the matter started about two years ago at the urging of Local 919. At that time the issue was purported to be women's rights.

Local 919 represents some 100 city employes, excluding police and firemen. The fire department has its own union.

In 1974 a complaint was filed with the state Fair Employment Practices Commission (FEPC), stating that the city was not dealing fairly with its women employes.

An investigation was conducted and numerous recommendations made by the FEPC.

"Women's rights have somehow been lost in the shuffle," Saeger now feels.

What Saeger and the Daly City Fire Fighters' Union Local 1879 oppose is opening up promotional examinations to "outsiders" instead of promoting from within city ranks.

The seniority system, which Saeger calls "the very backbone of civil service," would likewise be eliminated under the proposed program.

Both Saeger and Robert Padreddii, president of the Fire Fighters Union Local, hail the hiring of more minorities for entry level vacancies.

This would afford everyone equal training and promotional opportunities.

But the FEPC points out there are now not enough minorities and women in city positions offering promotional opportunities. Therefore, recruitment should be for jobs higher than the entry level.

And Saeger doesn't want to see the city's affirmative action program turned into a "make work" situation like the CETA (Comprehensive Employment and Training Act) program, he said.

CETA, according to Saeger, has some merits. However, the program has also attracted some "undesireables," he said.

"I don't want to see the affirmative action program of the city turned into a CETA-type situation. We've got enough clowns here already. We don't need anymore," Saeger said.

Both Saeger and Padreddii also asked that the promotional system be left alone.

At present, the hiring authority can select from the list's top three candidates for a job.

The proposed system would allow the city to hire anyone from the list, regardless of their score.

"I would ask the city to retain enough merit to screen out undesireables," Saeger said.

County Mass Transit Plan is Recommended

By BOB HEMINGWAY

A $105.5 million three-county transit plan calling for preservation and upgrading of rail and bus service on the Peninsula between San Francisco and San Jose was recommended by a 7 to 2 vote of the Peninsula Transit Alternatives Project Committee (PENTAP) Friday following 4½ hours of discussion in Redwood City.

The committee's recommendation, which also includes the acquisition of the Southern Pacific right-of-way between San Bruno and Daly City, goes to the Metropolitan Transportation Commission for consideration at its Dec. 15 meeting in Oakland.

The State Legislature has mandated that a mass transit plan for the Peninsula corridor be submitted to the state by Jan. 1, 1977.

Ironically, the plan, which calls for increased and expanded passenger service by Southrn Pacific, is opposed by the SP.

PENTAP Committeeman William R. Lawson of Menlo Park, one of the two voting against the recommendation, contended that the proposal would be "wasting money."

"I don't see how we can adopt B (the designation for the plan) in view of SP saying for the past 10 years that it wants to get out of the passenger business," Lawson stated. "No one seems to believe them."

In a letter from A. D. DeMoss, vice-president of Southern Pacific, read at Friday's meeting, the SP official said that, "since our present commute operation which provides good service at a low cost continues to lose patrons, it is obvious that the fixed rail commute system is not what the public wants. The dedication of public funds in further expanding an undesired, money-losing services is not justified and no demographic study or mathematical formula can change a fact of life."

DeMoss asserted in the letter that "Peninsula travelers prefer the convenience of door-to-door service by major vehicles."

Wally Dela Barre, spokesman for the engineering consulting firm of Daniel, Mann, Johnson and Mendenhall (DMJM) which prepared alternate transit plans for PENTAP, said in recommending alternate B that it "maintains all the options for future growth and development," although admitting it initially does not meet the objectives of maximum use of public transit.

Actually, Dela Barre said, he believes Alternate C, which would extend BART service from Daly City to San Francisco International Airport, in conjunction with upgrading of train and bus service, is a better plan because it would provide the airport service.

However, he stated, alternate C "is not politically acceptable" because any extension of BART into San Mateo County would require a vote of the people.

It wouldn't receive a favorable vote, Dela Barre predicted, because of the property and sales tax involved to support BART, as well as the buy-in provision in BART legislation.

However, if another regional funding source could be found to support BART extension, "that would be a new ballgame," Dela Barre said.

However, the provision in alternate B to acquire the SP's San Bruno-Daly City right-of-way will preserve that route for the

Despite Korean Death Threats

Paper to Continue

By FRANK LaPIERRE

Daly City publisher Song Sun Keun announced Monday that his newspaper, the Korea Journal, will resume publication within two weeks, despite threats made on his life if he continues publishing anti-South Korean government editorials.

In making the announcement, Song said he will write about the alleged bribery of U.S. Congress members by South Korean business and government officials.

Last August, Song's newspaper ceased publication after all but a couple of advertisers cancelled their business.

Song said his opposition to the administration of South Korea President Park Chung Hee has caused him to be branded by some as a Communist.

"I'm not a Communist. I detest dictators whether they are from South or North Korea," Song maintains.

The 38-year-old Song, who lives with his wife and two children in Daly City, received a death threat in August 1974.

The publisher immediately notified Daly City Police of the threat.

Song alleged the Korean Counter Intelligence Agency (KCIA) was responsible for the death threat, made by telephone to his San Francisco office.

Since that first threat, Song has received at least two others — in writing, but has not reported them to police, it was learned.

Singled out by Song as the alleged leader of KCIA operations in the Bay Area is Korean Consul Man Sung Limb, assigned to the Korean consul-general's office in San Francisco.

A spokesman for the Korean consul-general's office, K. J. Choi, cultural and information consul, denied that Limb is a KCIA agent brought to the United States to investigate Korean critics of President Park.

"Mr. Limb is listed on the diplomatic list as a 'consul.' He has been here almost three years and is not an agent of the KCIA. He is what it says he is — a consul in our San Francisco office," Choi said.

Because of published reports of alleged KCIA activities in the nation, there has been a major shakeup in the local operation and Limb soon will be transferred out of the country, Song predicts.

Choi disputed Song's statements on such a transfer, pointing out that if Limb is transferred it will be because he already has been in the area for three years.

"Normally, consuls are transferred to other areas after serving three years (in an area)," Choi explained. "Limb has been here (in San Francisco) for

Charges Dropped Against Kirby

Misdemeanor charges filed last week against Daly City Det. John Kirby were dismissed Monday by San Mateo County Dist. Atty. Keith Sorenson.

Kirby had been promised immunity for his testimony by San Francisco County Dist. Atty. Joe Freitas in exchange for testimony concerning the alleged misconduct of other police officers assigned to narcotics details on the Peninsula.

Following some 13 weeks of testimony, the San Francisco Grand Jury last week handed down criminal indictments against Asst. Police Inspectors Ronald Limneos and Patrick Wolfe of the San Francisco Police Department, and Robert Boatwright, a Treasury Department narcotics agent.

Kirby and San Francisco Police Sgt. Arthur Gerrans were named unindicted co-conspirators in the case, which started with the arrest of two Daly City men during a drug raid on Feb. 7.

Sorenson had charged Kirby with making out a false report following the raid.

The district attorney blamed Kirby's action for undermining the credibility of the prosecution's case, which resulted in charges against the two men being dropped.

Making out a false report is a misdemeanor, Sorenson said.

"I dismissed action on the charge (against Kirby) so as not to interfere (with Freitas' case in San Francisco), although I feel we have a good legal point," Sorenson said.

Earlier, Sorenson told Freitas he did not want to

Pacifica Move to Recall 3

Three Pacifica council members hopped off a SamTrans bus and were greeted with official documents announcing recall proceedings against them.

Mayor Janice Fulford, and Councilmen Sidney Lorvan and Mark Savage each received a "Notice of Intention to Circulate a Recall Petition," lising charges against them by a contingent of Pacifica residents seeking their recall.

The two other members of the council, Stan Farber and Nick Gust, are not targets of the recall effort.

The occasion Saturday morning was the annual City Council tour of the city to meet with homeowners' associations.

Mrs. Betty Wilson, chairwoman of the recall effort, said that serving the three

City Now Decides EIR on Office Building Not Needed

The City Council of Daly City Monday did an about-face, and determined that an environmental impact report (EIR) is not needed for construction of a multi-storied office building on John Daly Boulevard.

Last week, the council refused to give a green light to the project and requested that an EIR be filed.

This report would have stalled the project for several months, some city officials said.

California Federal Savings and Loan Association, builders of the office complex, asked the council for reconsideration based on new information concerning parking in the area.

Earlier, the council had said it heard that traffic would overflow onto residential streets in the neighborhood. Also, construction of the building would take away parking spaces from a nearby restaurant.

California Federal Savings vice president James R. Butler told the city a mutual parking agreement had been worked out between his firm and the restaurant which would allow joint use of all parking spaces.

Site of the savings and loan office is an abandoned gasoline station.

In other action Monday, the council approved an agreement with the Daly City Community for Children's Services for rental of a city-owned building at 101 Peoria St.

City Manager David Rowe told the council that modifications to the building to bring it up to code will be paid for with Federal Housing and Community Development Act Funds.

Over the past 18 months some $136,000 in federal grant funds has been appropriated by the city to children's services, Rowe said.

Rental on the building will be $40 per month for the first three months and $150 per month thereafter, Rowe said.

The building will be used to provide day care for children, especially those from low-income working families, it was explained.

Council Acts in Complicated Case

SSF Auto Repair Shop Ordered to Vacate

By JANET PARKER

A South San Francisco businessman has been told to get out of a building in which he has been operating an auto repair shop for six months without a use permit.

Failure to do so could result in legal action by the city against Victor Brincat, who also is the owner of Magna Carta University.

The City Council — after a second long and complicated hearing—voted 4-0 last week to deny a use permit for Brincat on behalf of his son, Arthur Brincat.

Councilman William Borba refused to vote on the matter. He said the council should not get involved until after a dispute between Brincat and the owner of the building is resolved in court.

The council's decision came as a blow to Brincat and his attorney, Allen Schnibben, who had met with the city manager and his staff last week to work out the conditions of a possible use permit.

Schnibben had suggested during the public hearing that denial of a use permit or implementation of conditions that he and Brincat considered unfair could lead to legal action against the city.

The complicated developments at 619 Airport Blvd. have perplexed both the Planning Commission and the City Council for months.

Brincat moved into the building and opened the business in July. However, when the city planning staff found out about the auto repair shop, Brincat was told a use permit would be needed.

During a hearing before the Planning Commission concerning the use permit application, the involved mix-up surfaced. An attorney for Metropolitan Furniture Co. alleged that Brincat is trespassing in the warehouse.

The attorney, Warren Saltzman, said the owners had entered into a contract with Brincat in June for the purchase of the building for $155,000. Brincat was to pay a monthly lease of $1,140 until January, when the deal would be closed.

However, Saltzman said Brincat delivered a $10,000 deposit check to an escrow account with instructions that it was not to be cashed. Saltzman alleged that there never was enough money in Brincat's account to cover the the check.

Without a valid deposit, Saltzman said, no purchase exists.

Despite the problems, the Planning Commission approved a use permit in August with a list of stringent conditions that would be nearly impossible for Brincat or any other building owner to meet. Included was the deposit of a performance bond of a minimum of $5,000.

Brincat appealed to the City Council to overrule the conditions. At an earlier hearing, the council appeared sympathetic and knocked some conditions — including the bond — off the list, on advice of City Atty. John Noonan.

However, this week, the council stunned Brincat by rejecting the use permit entirely.

Saltzman told the council the furniture company has sued Brincat and a Superior Court judge is expected to determine the real ownership of the building in January. In the meantime, Brincat has refused to cease work or remove equipment from the building.

"We hope to get Mr. Brincat out of there, because we don't think there's any contract at all," Saltzman said.

"He is in there as a trespasser and we intend to prove it," he said. "It's not easy to get someone out once they're sitting there."

Schnibben said ownership is a legal question the council should not deal with and City Atty. Noonan agreed.

Brincat, Schnibben said, is an interested party, which is qualification enough to apply for a use permit. He said he expects Brincat will become the legal owner anyway in four to five weeks when the deal is closed.

The owners of the building, however, doubt that the deal will ever be closed.

Borba's motion to postpone a decision until a Superior Court ruling is issued died for lack of a second. Councilman Dick Battaglia then moved that Brincat be forced to cease all operations within a week.

"It's unfair to close him down," Borba objected. "He's been allowed to operate all this time. We should have stopped him then."

Noonan said Brincat should be out of the building in a week. If not, the council can take legal action to evict him.

SSF Considers City Fee

South San Francisco apartment owners could soon find themselves subject to an annual business license fee.

The City Council has told its staff to study a fee — the first ever for apartment owners in the city — and determine the reactin on of those who would be affected.

Councilman William Borba, who had objected to an increase in business license fees, opposed putting off a fee and pushed for implementation as soon as possible.

"It's an income-producing business also," Borba said. "If you should tax one, you should tax them all."

Finance Director Bill Anderson Wednesday had proposed a business fee for apartment owners.

He suggested a $25 minimum fee plus $3 a unit. The city estimates that there are 2,600 dwelling units and the annual revenue would be about $7,800.

While Borba was eager to put such a fee to work; his fellow councilmen were not.

Councilman Terry Mirri said a distinction should be made between businesses and apartments. Most units in South San Francisco, he said, are owned by independent persons who have worked many years to acquire property for a retirement income.

He objected to statements by Borba that a business license fee adopted that night was "rushed through." It was so "rushed," Mirri said, it took a 1½ years to reach the council.

He said there never has been such a tax and the city shouldn't implement one now.

Borba said someone "missed the boat" in not implementing a fee for apartment owners much sooner.

"Someone missed the boat wisely," Mirri responded.

An apartment house, Mirri claimed, is never the sole support of an individual's income, while a business usually is.

'Holdouts' Slowing Tax Collections

With the Dec. 10 deadline for payment of the first installment of 1976-77 property taxes rapidly approaching, collections are "lagging a little," San Mateo County Tax Collector-Treasurer Ross Conti reported today.

Conti said that his office has received about $20 million of the anticipated $133 million expected in first installment payments.

He's not worried though, because the large institutions normally withhold payment until the last day. Also, Conti said, payments should be picking up, with banks recently sending out Christmas Club checks.

The total 1976-77 property tax bill for the county is $256 million, with Dec. 10 the final day for payment of the first installment without penalty.

Conti urged taxpayers to mail their payments and not have to chance standing in a long line at his office in the old courthouse in Redwood City.

New Parole Division Office Opens

The Parole and Community Services Division of the Department of Corrections has opened an office at 609 Price Ave., Redwood City.

The office will serve the 340 parolees living in the county.

Supervisor Patrick A. Bolger and a staff of 10 agents will cover all county cases formerly shared by San Francisco and San Jose office personnel. The Redwood City office is located next to the Department of Motor Vehicles building.

Squall Opens Power Plant Debates

By JANET PARKER

A Pacific Gas and Electric Co. power plant proposal faced a public hearing Thursday that may have been the calm before the storm.

The power company's proposal for a new plant at one of four Bay Area sites will likely undergo the closest scrutiny of environmentalists, while construction industry leaders are already vowing their support.

A committee of the state Energy Resources Conservation and Development Commission met in San Mateo to accept public comments about the proposal.

The year-old commission was appointed by the governor to certify new electric power plants in California.

However, commission staff members raised questions Thursday concerning the need for the plant and its potential environmental effect. Those questions must be answered by PG&E at upcoming hearings.

Commissioner Alan Pasternak, who chaired the meeting, said it is too early to determine public sentiment about the plant or to project which of the four sites is most favorable.

PG&E has proposed construction of a 400,000 kilowatt combined-cycle power plant at one of four possible locations, two in San Mateo County.

The two local sites are Oyster Point in South San Francisco, east of Highway 101 and adjacent to the city marina, and Visitacion Point in Brisbane, east of the Southern Pacific railroad yard.

The other proposed sites are the Potrero power plant area in San Francisco and a site in north San Jose.

Rick Frank, attorney for the commission, said the most critical question before the committee is whether or not a need for the proposed power plant actually exists.

PG&E officials have said that there will be an annual increase of at least 150,000 persons in the PG&E service are through 1985. In its "Notice of Intention," PG&E also said declining natural gas supplies will result in a greater need for electric energy.

The gas turbine portion of the plant would be completed by 1980 and the steam portion a year later.

The proposed plant, Frank said, would increase air pollution in the San Francisco Bay Area.

"The introduction of additional omissions from the proposed power plant as attendant fuel storage tanks into an area where the air quality standards are already exceeded could impose potential risks to public health," Frank said.

He also referred to special seismic problems at the Potrero, South San Francisco and Brisbane sites and said that special engineering techniques would be required to avoid severe damage to the plant during a strong earthquake.

Concerning land use, Frank said the commission staff is questioning possible conflicts between the plant and buildings or industries already located at those sites.

"The construction of the power plant at the Oyster Point site apparently would result in the dislocation of certain commercial and recreational operations," he said.

He pointed out that a condominium development is being considered adjacent to the Oyster Point site. Transmission lines from the plant would flank an area on the south slope of San Bruno Mountain, where a 50-unit residential development is planned.

PG&E filed its "Notice of Intention" on Sept. 1. The committee will make its recommendation to the full commission after formal hearings in 1977. Pasternak said that at least two sites must be deemed acceptable before the proposal can proceed.

Hearings could extend over the next two years.

An informal hearing will be held in San Jose today. The first hearing was held in San Francisco last week.

South San Francisco's acting city planner, Bill Constanzo, told the commission that his city has hired a consultant to prepare a report on the possible effects of the plant on that city.

In a report to the city Planning Commission last month, Costanzo projected severe adverse effects on the marina and surrounding community if the plant were constructed at Oyster Point.

Brisbane officials did not testify, but City Manager Clark Smithson said this week the early reaction to a power plant construction there is favorable.

However, the testimony of other persons from throughout the county on Thursday indicated there may be a chasm between environmentalists and the construction industry.

Gary Codbey, executive director of the Concerned Citizens Coalition of San Mateo County, said there are some problems related to construction of power plants.

However, he also said, he would like to see some of the environmentalists who protest such plants offer positive, rather than negative input — including alternatives to new plants.

"Quite frankly, we would like to see it (the plant) located in San Mateo County," Godbey said. He said California has been a victim of a "no-growth attitude" and that is why the state has the highest unemployment in the country along with a severe housing shortage.

Providing the opposite point of view was Fed Martin, chairman of the Loma Prieta Sierra Club Chapter.

In a letter read into the record, Martin chided PG&E for what he claimed is a disinterest in studying municipal refuse as a power source.

He said PG&E correspondence concerning refuse as a power alternative "indicates that it is the policy of PG&E not to consider the use of refuse as a source of energy.

"The Sierra Club recommends that the Energy Commission raise the question of combining this project with a project to convert municipal refuse to energy," he said.

PG&E officials — led by attorney Leigh Cassigy — said that the utility company has considered methods to mitigate the detrimental aspects of each site proposal.

Performers will include children from the tap and ballet class and adults from the tap class, under the direction of Lynda Davis. Also children from the creative movement class, under the direction of Penny Keating.

Dances to be performed will include: Festival of the Rainbow Spirits, Russian Peasant Dance, Tappin', Mickey Mouse Birthday, Solace, and a class demonstration of creative movement.

Following the recital, a mini-preview of children's and adults winter-spring instructional classes will be presented. Instructors will be on hand to answer questions and demonstrate crafts.

Admission is free and all are invited.

SamTrans Labor Pact Is Approved

The first labor contract negotiated between the San Mateo County Transit District (SamTrans) and the Amalgamated Transit Union gives bus drivers an average hourly increase of 65 cents an hour, it was announced today.

Mechanics will get an average boost of 58 cents an hour, through June 30, 1979. A cost-of-living adjustment will become effective, July 1, 1979, to cover the balance of the contract.

The agreement will not require any tax increase for San Mateo County residents. The contract expires Oct. 31, 1979.

SamTrans Chairman Robert E. Norris and Edward J. Medina, president of Local 1547 of the transit union, said negotiations were conducted in a spirit of cooperation. The union represents 138 employes.

Norris pointed out that since labor costs account for 75 per cent of all bus operation expenses, the three-year contract will allow the district to plan ahead.

A Ride With Paramedics

Fast Start for Medevac

By VERN KROGH

The county's new Medevac ambulance service got off to an almost perfect start Wednesday.

Its 15 paramedics and 14 ambulances answered 43 calls from midnight to midnight without losing a patient. The average response time — the time from receiving a call to reaching an emergency — was cut in half.

The smooth start was attributed to more than three months of planning and the logistics of dispatching ambulances. Under the new system, ambulances are dispatched to a location other than their own stations to stand in for ambulances on emergency runs.

One team, for example, composed of Norm Payne, 23, and John Scott, 33, was stationed at San Carlos Fire Department headquarters. During much of the day, however, they ranged from Whipple Avenue in Redwood City to State Highway 92 in San Mateo to fill in for ambulances on calls.

According to Robert E. Moore, general manager of the new county-wide ambulance service, the average response time was 5 ½ to 6 minutes, compared with 10 to 20 minutes in the past.

The faster response time was confirmed by John Etherton, night supervisor at the County Communications Center in Redwood City, who said, "We came in at midnight and scrapped everything we've been doing for five years. The response time was easily cut in half. Previously, private ambulances were dispatched from their stations."

The system's first day record was accomplished without the much-hailed telemetric equipment that will allow ambulance crews to be in direct contact with emergency room physicians and nurses.

This part of the service will gradually be phased in, beginning with the southern part of the county, whose ambulances should be in connection with Stanford University Hospital late this year or early next year.

Although a contract with the county calls for the full paramedic service to be in service by October 1977, Moore said he hopes to beat this deadline by two to three months.

The new service was only five minutes old when it received its first call just after midnight. It was to Marco Polo Way and Davis Drive in Burlingame to pick up an emotionally disturbed person.

Although the systems's 14 ambulacces responded to a variety of calls Wednesday, one-fourth were to pick up emotionally disturbed persons.

The crew at Pacifica was most active during the first shift. Twice that night it took a woman who attempted to take her own life by slashing her wrists to Mary's Help Hospital, the second time after she escaped and returned home, paramedics reported.

A woman who fell 40 feet from her balcony and down a cliff in the Linda Mar area of Pacifica was taken to Mary's Help with massive head injuries. Another woman who fell on the escalator at the BART station in Daly City was taken to the same hospital with a fractured pelvis and a dislocated ankle.

Other responses were to the county jail in Redwood City, where two inmates slashed each other in a fight, and two calls were to the San Francisco International Airport to pick up victims of heart attacks.

In all, a half dozen victims of heart attacks were taken to hospitals, and ambulances even picked up a number of intoxicated persons to be taken to psychiatric facilities.

Payne, who was graduated from the Queens Paramedics School in San Gabriel, and Scott, 33, who took his paramedic course in Fort Worth, Tex., emphasize the professionalism of the crews.

Both work 24-hour shifts — the same as the firemen with whom they will work. But both complained that because of the mobility of the new operation they were only able to drop asleep, each time for about 20 minutes, during the first early morning's operation.

Scott has more than seven years of experience, Payne more than three. Both were graduated from six-month paramedic courses that included classroom, hospital and field training compacted into eight hours a day, five days a week.

Both will be qualified to administer a variety of drugs provide intravenous therapy and other medical services once the service becomes fully functional.

Agribusiness Workshop Set

An advanced farm and agribusiness valuation workshop will be held at the San Francisco International Airport Hilton Hotel on Feb. 18 and 19, it was announced today.

The sessions are sponsored by the American Society of Farm Managers and Rural Appraisers.

Additional information is available from the society at Post Office Box 6857, Denver, Colo., 80206.

A Profound Look At Life Today

By JACK RUSSELL

"If I were ever to go mad it would be on Thanksgiving Day, that day of guilt and grace when the family hangs upon you like an ax over a sacrificial victim, like the oven's heat on that poor bird. What a perfect day to go loony. In comes the turkey and out I go, borne on a stretcher into the cold maternal night, smashing all that crystal and china of theirs."

So shouts the heroine of Francine du Plessix Gray's first novel, "Lovers and Tyrants" published by Simon and Schuster and already meriting rave reviews in such magazines as Time and Newsweek.

The writer is not producing a new version of "Diary of A Mad Housewife," but rather, a Rabelaisian romp in a style as finely honed as anyone writing today.

Review of Books, Ms. Gray visited the Bay Area this week.

Although a supporter of the feminist movement, she sees many problems ahead. "It is full of ambiguity and dialectics. It can be a real threat to the masculinity of some men. One of my sensitive students really felt overpowered by it," she stated.

She has followed the movement for years as she also has covered the radical left and the changes in the Catholic Church. This led to her first published book, a non-fiction work, "The Divine Disobedience."

Her novel has been compared to the works of such diverse talents as Virginia Woolf and Doris Lessing with a dash of Gallic Colette tossed in for spice.

It traces the history of Stephanie from her bizarre

Francine duPlessix Gray

Trained as an UPI reporter and tuned with years of work for the New Yorker and the New York childhood in war-torn France of World War II through the disappearance of her glamorous father to her emigration to America, her schooling in a private New York school and her subsequent marriage to a tragicomic European nobleman.

Throughout the novel, even in its most picaresque moments, there is a deep involvement with the quest for a religious answer.

One of her most superbly portrayed figures is a young Jesuit priest, Father Greg who plunges deep into the world of cosmic exploration after leaving his order.

Stephanie, at one point, exclaims passionately, "Let's not kid ourselves, this jazzy modern church stuff isn't going to work; at first we were all so excited by it — the grape juice and cookie-guitar Masses, the abandonment of the Latin and vestments and the dank confessional booths — but like all the other liberal solution it's a mess, like dribbling token funds into rotting cities or the Uncle Tom handouts to women."

Still, Ms Gray feels firmly linked to a life of commitment in her writing.

Who would she like to see receive the Nobel Prize next year? Surprisingly perhaps, she unhesitatingly names Norman Mailer.

"He has dealt with the main themes of our era, more so than Saul Bellow."

She also champions the long commitment of Graham Greene with his involvement in the great moments of the century. Another favorite is Samuel Beckett.

She is not a fan of the latter works of Vladimir Nabokov, perhaps the most noted of those writers not yet adorned with the Nobel laureate.

Her first novel has taken 10 years in the brewing. She notes firmly that she needed the full support of her husband during its writing.

Certainly her work shows a strong grip of the moods of the era and yet a return to the style of the early day classic writers. She avoids the confused pitfalls of an Erica Jong or Erin O'Brien.

Her psychology is uncanny in its accuracy as she delineates the strange coldness Stephanie Feels in later years towards the governess who was the center of her constricted childhood world.

Prayers, Blessings For Youth

Congregation Beth Israel Judea, 625 Brotherhood Way, San Francisco, will celebrate Chanukah at shabbat services at the Temple December 17.

It is a tradition at Temple Beth Israel Judea that every family is invited to bring their own Chanukah Menorahs so that all may light the Chanukah candles together.

During these services, there will be a special consecration prayer and blessing for the students of the Beth Israel Judea Religious School who have enrolled for the first time this year in pre-kindergarten through 6th Grade.

Each of the following children of the Religious School will receive a miniature Torah scroll to mark this special occasion: Geoffrey Becker, Eric Birnbaum, Heidi Birnbaum, Todd Birnbaum, Mike Burke, Ernest Chapman, Jacqueline Chapman, Robert Chapman, Joel Kurzman, Stephen Kurzman, Lori Landau, Stacy Landau, Edward Lipton, Jason Lipton, Ariella Liptz, Laura Rayner and Lisa Rose.

Following this service there will be an Oneg Shabbat reception for 35 new families who have joined Temple Beth Israel Judea during the past year.

Nell Norton

Before we swing into all the fancy Christmas cooking and baking activities, perhaps we should pause for a simple, but delicious "plain" meal.

Moist chunks of cooked potatoes are flecked with bits of green pepper, celery and green onions, then coated with a savory oil-vinegar dressing. As the salad bakes, the flavors blend together and the potatoes absorb the tang of the dressing.

Baked potato salad will be a welcome addition to any meal, but especially nice at this time of the year with such crisp weather meats as baked ham, pork chops or meat loaf.

BAKED POTATO SALAD

5 large potatoes
½ cup chopped celery
¼ cup chopped green pepper
½ cup chopped green onions
¼ cup salad oil
1 Tablespoon flour
1 Tablespoon sugar
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon dry mustard
½ teaspoon seasoned salt
¼ teaspoon paprika
½ cup water
¼ cup vinegar

Boil the five large potatoes in salted water until barely tender. Drain and peel. Cut into ½-inch cubes.

Saute the half cup celery, fourth cup green pepper and half cup green onions in the fourth cup salad oil until tender. Blend in the one tablespoon each flour and sugar, one teaspoon salt, half teaspoon dry mustard, half teaspoon seasoned salt and fourth teaspoon paprika.

Gradually add the half cup water and fourth cup vinegar, stirring until thickened. Toss gently with potatoes.

Place in 1½ quart casserole. Bake in 350-degree oven for 15 to 20 minutes. Serves 8.

Discuss Tax Rate

A special "Property Taxes Forum" will be shown this weekend on Channel 14, the College of San Mateo television station.

The panel show will be shown at 7 p.m. Friday, with a repeat showing at 5:30 p.m. Sunday.

Ed Rivera, producer and host of a regularly scheduled Latino program, has given up his half-hour weekly time slot for the special show on taxes, an outgrowth of San Mateo County's first Community Tax Summit, which drew 250 residents to the CSM campus Tuesday night.

Rivera will be moderator of a panel consisting of: Reva Krips, a member of the Westlake Homeowners Association, Daly City; Randy Wall, building contractor and president of the Broadmoor Property Owners Association, Colma; Elna Tymes, president of the Los Trancos Woods Community Association, Portola Valley; Kenneth Knopf, a director of the Hillsborough Homeowners Association; and Ralph Boynton, president of the San Mateo County Town Hall Association and a resident of Menlo Park.

Christmas Bureau Aims to Fill Tables

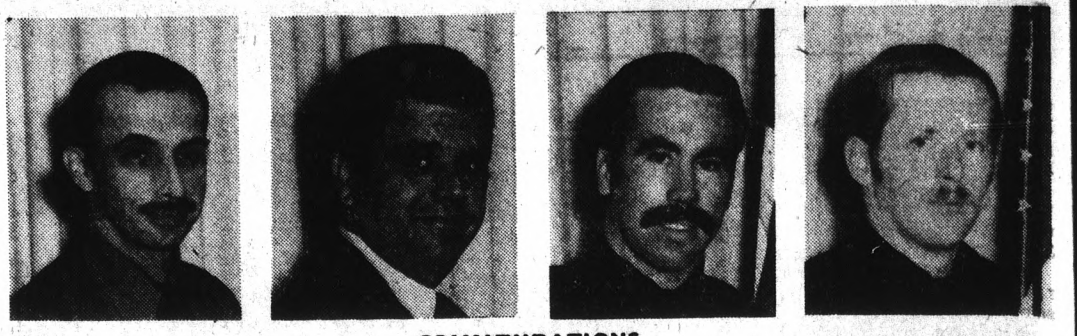
Will your Christmas dinner table be filled with good food for your family and friends?

The South San Francisco Information and Referral Center staff fears that many North County families will be hungry on Christmas. Through the San Mateo County Christmas Bureau, the center is accepting groceries or Christmas baskets to be distributed to needy families.

Assistant Social Planner Ben Ross said local families which think they will need a basket should drop in at the center, Hillside Boulevard and School Street, before Dec. 17.

A staff member will assist needy families in filling out applications. Priority will be given to large families and families with low incomes or those on welfare or disability. The center is open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays.

In addition, the South San Francisco Red Cross at 803 Linden Ave. is accepting used and new toys. Starting Dec. 15, parents will be able to pick out toys for their children for Christmas.



COMMENDATIONS

Four Daly City police personnel recently received certificates of commendation from Police Chief David Hansen. They are Dispatcher Ronald Lippis, for his "calm reassuring demeanor" in dealing with a potential suicide victim; Officer Dennis Pinnatore, for his "outstanding manner" in conducting the investigation of a stabbing incident that helped solve the case; Officer Richard Bridges, for his "physical stamina, aggressiveness, determination and good judgment" that led to the arrest of an armed robbery suspect; and Officer Henry Hekker, for his "commendable police team work" in dealing with an armed suspect.

Ryan Disturbed by Secret Service Nab

Congressman Leo J. Ryan, D-San Mateo, today demanded a full investigation into a story recently appearing in newspapers asserting that the Secret Service nabbed the wrong man in Houston, Tex., because he resembled someone on the FBI's "10 Most Wanted List."

The wanted man was identified as James Ray Renton, who has not been captured.

Ryan has sent letters to the House Judiciary Committee and H. Stuart Knight, director of the Secret Service, asking for a full accounting of the case.

He added that if there are extenuating circumstances for the incident, they should be taken into consideration. If not, however, he wants a report on the Secret Service policy in regard to such happenings, and disciplinary action be taken against the agents involved.

Ryan emphasized that public agencies must safeguard against flagrant violations of citizens' rights.

Big Raise for School Chief

San Mateo County Superintendent of Schools Dr. J. Russell Kent will return from a business trip this weekend to discover that the Board of Education has awarded him an $11,097 a year salary increase.

The board voted Wednesday night to increase Kent's annual salary from $32,800 to $43,897.

The action was taken under new legislation contained in Proposition 8 which was approved by the state's voters in the Nov. 2 general election.

The legislation removes the setting of superintendents' salaries by the State Legislature and delegates it to county boards of education.

Since 1961, superintendents' salaries had been determined on a formula which related an "adjustment factor" to the statewide average of teachers' salaries.

David J. Shepard, public information officer for the County Office of Education, said that superintendents' salaries failed to keep pace with teachers' salaries because the legislature had established a $35,00 ceiling for a county's superintendent's salary and consequently used a lower average than the actual teacher salaries.

"Our board has studied salaries presently paid to school district superintendents in the state and in this county, also other public agency administrators, and has determined that applying the actual formula in the Education Code results in a reasonable salary," Shepard said.

Kent's new salary then was determined by taking the factor of 2.717 times the actual teacher salary statewide for 1975-76 ($15,300) and the actual teacher average for K-12 teachers in San Mateo County for 1976-77 ($17,013), Shepard explained.

Students must apply to the lodge nearest their home.

Deadline for filing applications is Feb. 10. Exalted Ruler James O. Miller of the San Mateo Lodge said the local lodge will award $100 to each Bay District winner entered through the local unit. Local winners will compete for higher awards.

Students with high grades who have participated in school and community activities and who need financial aid to continue their education are urged to participate.

Official entry blanks are available from high school counselors. Blanks may also be obtained from the San Mateo lodge office at 229 W. 20th Ave. in San Mateo.

Awards are given without restriction as to race, creed or origin. The Elks National Foundation's "Most Valuable Student-Leadership" contest has produced more than $8 million in college scholarships during the 42 years of its operation.

Transit

future, he said, and possible extension of BART or some other system to the airport.

Lawson said that it would be difficult to implement alternate B in view of SP objections.

"How do you propose to resolve this, with lawsuits?" he asked.

Dela Barre said that was a possibility, but that he is hopeful it can be done through negotiations and "ruling by the Public Utilities Commission."

PENTAP Chairman John Beckett of Santa Clara County, who also voted against recommending alternate B, contended that the plan does not focus on the need to address reduction of traffic congestion, air pollution from cars and energy consumption.

"Alternate B falls short of the MTC goals and objectives," Beckett asserted.

He favors alternate C, Beckett said, adding, however, that, "I realize it is not a conducive time to talk of additional spending of public funds."

Committeeman Robert Norris of Redwood City, who made the motion for recommendation of alternate B, stated:

"We are doing something, even though it is a small slice. We're facing a real crisis, a fuel crisis people won't speak to. If we don't provide the flexibility to provide transport for a large number of persons, we will impose by default on the people a large financial burden."

Committee Gerald Cauthen of San Francisco, referring to the PENTAP Citizens Advisory Committee's recommendation that the transit plan should emphasize upgrading of SP service and downgrading of competing bus service, commented that, "We should compete the bus and the SP against the car, not against each other."

He said that SP should be extended further into the downtown area of San Francisco to "give it a shot in the arm."

"If we're going to commit SF, then let's commit SP and make it work," Cauthen stated.

He recommended that buses be put on exclusive lanes on the freeways.

"Upgrading can close the gates on the automobile," the committeeman stated.

Dela Barre said the recommended plan calls for ultimate improvement of SP rolling stock and improvement of station areas, as well as expanded service.

The project committee discussed but didn't take any action on recommendations for financing the transit plan, which would have an initial capital improvement cost of $105.5 million and operating costs totaling $33.9 million a year by 1990.

Dela Barre listed five potential financing sources — a one-half of one per cent increase in the sales tax, a three-cent per gallon tax on gasoline, a toll surcharge n the Bay, San Mateo and Dumbarton bridges, an additional one per cent on the motor vehicle in-lieu tax and an airport ticket or parking surcharge of 50 cents.

Use of all the sources would produce a surplus of $260.9 million over capital improvement and operating costs for the first five-year period from 1977 through 1981, Dela Barre estimated.

No action was taken on funding recommendations because the MTC is in the process of studying funding sources for transit in the Bay Area.

It's studies could "change the whole aspect" of financing, commented John Mauro, general manager of the San Mateo County Transit District, which supports the transit plan recommended by PENTAP.

Champion

circled 12 laps to make the race a total of 11 miles. Natwick completed it in 40 minutes.

"It was really a fast course for cycle cross," Natwick said. It's not, however, a race for the inexperienced.

Promoters for the race warned competitors of the king-sized mudholes, log boobytraps and "near vertical dirt plunges guaranteed to pitch persons over their handlebars unless they are expert (and lucky)."

In fact, part of the cyclo-cross race involves dismounting the bicycle, carrying it up a hill, mounting and dropping back down the other side at break-neck speeds.

Natwick took a three-foot ditch in stride. While every other competitors dismounted and walked through the ditch, Natwick stunned the challengers by leaping over it on his bike.

The cycling event, he said, is actually a winter sport, designed to keep bike competitors in shape yearround. During the summer, Natwick competes in road racing — the cross country event of the cycling world.

Natwick has been able to train daily through the Community Environmental Education Program at Serramonte High School in Daly City. He transferred from Terra Nova High School specifically to participate in the program.

Presently, he is in the independent study and research phase. Each student, according to instructor Abe Evenich, sets a goal and strives to attain it. Natwick's goal was simply to win the national championships. He won the second place berth in junior competition last year.

Rather than attend classes, Natwick has been riding his bicycle, working out and reading all the literature about bicycling that he can find. During this phase of the environmental program, students attend classes only on Mondays.

"His goal was more real than some of the students," said Evenich. "For some, it's hard to measure if they reached their goal."

Evenich said Natwick is one of the most energetic and enthusaistic students in the program. He's built bicycle training into a lifestyle, Evenich said.

"He's one of the most viable, healthy students — both in terms of physical condition and morals — I've ever had," Evenich said.

Natwick got his start in racing through Club Endspurt, a North County bike touring group. Fritz Leidl, an Austrian bicycling champion who lives in Daly City, founded the club and urged Natwick to become a racer.

Since then, Natwick has traveled as far as Georgia to compete. He placed first in the 40-mile Mt. Hamilton race in San Jose, first in a 20-mile Nevada City race and first in the 6-mile Far West Cyclo-Cross Champions.

His goal is to place in the world championships in January. Win or not, he hopes to remain in Europe to train with top cyclists on that continent.

"Competition in Europe is much, much harder," Natwick said. "They have more experience and know-how." Elaborate tracks for cyclists to practice are more common in Europe and cyclists from that continent usually dominate Olympic competition.

In fact, the 1980 Olympics are his distant goal. His recent win earned him a gold medal and a sharp-looking red, white and blue jersey to wear in world competition.

But his eyes light up at the mention of an Olympic medal. Since cyclocross is not an Olympic event, he will aim for road-racing competition.

"He's headed for the Olympics and he's going to make it. In fact, I know he will," Evenich said.

Recall

recall subjects with the papers was a necessary legal step before filing — probably by the end of this week—the recall intent with City Manager-Clerk Don Weidner.

Mrs. Wilson said all three council members have been charged with:

- Not addressing the merits of projects; instead, passing judgment based on personal desires, likes and dislikes.
- Using poor judgment regarding the health, welfare and safety of residents by turning off one-third of the city's street lights.
- Disregarding or failing to consult various commissions appointed by the council.
- Not upholding the legal vote of residents on various issues.
- Participating in the "inconsiderate changing of the oral communications portion of the council meetings to make citizen input difficult."
- Approving cuts in police and fire services "when further reductions of non-essential areas would have been better for the community."

In addition, Mrs. Fulford has been charged with withholding official written communications from fellow council members and the public.

Documents presented to Savage and Lorvan contained the allegation that, as board members for Pyramid Alternatives, a social service organization which assists alcoholics both voted for a director with a criminal record.

The recall group alleges there was not "proper investigation of his past record and credentials."

The charge concerning street lights refers to a council decision during budget sessions to save $36,000 by turning off 33 per cent of the city's street lights. After public protest, the council had the lights turned back on.

All three council members will submit official responses to the charges before recall petitions are circulated.

Their responses must be published in the city's weekly newspaper.

do anything that would test the validity of Superior Court Judge Walter Calcagno's immunity order, especially if it interfered with the San Francisco district attorney's prosecution.

In the Kirby matter, the Grand Jury ordered the detective to testify, explaining that if he did, he would be immune from prosecution on anything he testified about.

In such cases, a judge issues an order concerning the testimony, it was understood.

Sorenson felt the order in the Kirby case was "Broad in scope."

Limneos has been named in 13 counts handed down by the Grand Jury, ranging from filing a false report to stealing money and perjury.

Wolfe was named in one count of perjury, and Boatright in two counts of perjury.

The false report allegedly stated that Gerren's accompanied Kirby on the raid at the Daly city apartment on Feb. 7, 1976. In fact, Sorenson said, Gerrens did not participate in that raid.

Following the raid and subsequent arrests, a complaint was filed by the suspects, charging police with stealing some money and items of clothing from the apartment.

An investigation was started by both San Francisco and Daly City police departments, which eventually led to the Grand Jury indictments.

about three years and, although we have not heard of any orders for Mr. Limb as yet, they would not be unexpected."

Song's newspaper likely will be limited to not more than 16 pages printed on 11"x17" paper, the publisher said.

According to Song, the KCIA got its start in the U.S. by pretending to cooperate with the Federal Bureau of Investigation in the search for possible infiltrators from North Korea.

Since this modest beginning about three years ago, the KCIA operatives have branched out into terrorist activities aimed at curtailing criticism of the Park regime by U.S. residents of Korean ancestry, Song charged.

A spokesman for the FBI here denied Song's theory.

The high ranking spokesman, who asked not to be identified, said the FBI has not engaged at any time in any activities with the KCIA, nor does it intend to in the future.

Samuel Chandler

San Francisco!

"An immense arm of the sea," wrote Padre Crespi, "an estuary, which penetrated into the land as far as the eye could reach."

San Francisco, "it never was a village . . . where barren sand dunes, marshes and brackish lagoons had surrounded an abandoned mission and a decaying fort with rusty cannon, San Francisco sprang into life overnight — a lusty, brawling he-man town . . . to be named in the same breath with Boston or Buenos Aires, Stockholm or Shanghai."

Among today's writers, there are many who are afraid that San Francisco may suffer changes that will lead to the social and ecological problems found in Shanghai or Buenos Aires, or those found in Boston or Stockholm.

Among these authors is Harold Gilliam of the San Francisco Chronicle. Hearing the rumble of bulldozers on the Marin and San Mateo coasts he wrote: "This terrace is California's front porch. It is our prospect to the Pacific. It is our threshold to the wonders of the sea. It is the place where the continent meets the ocean in a fierce, prolific encounter. And it is real estate — perhaps the most valuable . . . real estate in the world.

"To many a realtor and developer, it represents an irresistible opportunity to fatten up the bank account; its destiny to be carved up and sold for building sites."

It is not the building of homes in the Bay Area that bothers Mr. Gilliam and others. It is the indiscriminate bulldozing of irreplaceable natural resources in spite of the interests of the people — all the people — of the San Francisco area. Mr. Gilliam calls for "well-planned, tasteful second home subdivisions, as well as recreational and resort developments of certain points."

However, such developments "cannot be determined by the vagaries of the real estate market or the potential profits of developers."

Mr. Gilliam's words may be found in a 1972 publication "For Better or Worse" (Chronicle Books) which has a subtitle reading "The Ecology of an Urban Area." This is a book that warns against the tyranny of runaway technology in its assault on the unique environment and ethos of the San Francisco area.

Other pieces that call attention to the area's fragile environment are found in "The Challenge of California" by Eugene C. Lee and Willis D. Hawley (Little Brown) which is a 1970 publication that is still in print. Section seven contains articles by Frank M. Stead, William Bronson, Samuel E. Wood and Harvey Molotch that warn that we are losing the ecology battle for California.

The other sections of the book deal with California's future in terms of the public purse: justice and law, politics, and sociology. The main thrust of the anthology, however, is to show how government — federal, state and local — must be a tool for the healthy and logical development of California.

The compilers write that the people of California must realize that "politics and government have a critical role to play in advancing the quality of life, that individual citizens can make a difference, and that the difference is worth the effort. This is the Challenge of California."

Canned Food Drive

Operation Santa Claus Continues

The annual canned food drive, sponsored by the Daly City Recreation Department as part of Operation Santa Claus, will continue through Dec. 17 on all Daly City playgrounds.

Last year more than 8,000 canned goods were collected in a joint effort with Daly City schools, playgrounds and various groups. The goal has been set at 10,000 this year. The canned goods are packaged, along with other donated food, and distributed to needy families in Daly City during the Christmas holidays. The entire project is spearheaded by the Daly City Chamber of Commerce.

All Santa's helpers (playground kids) should contact their playground leader for details of the drive and identification tags. The playgrounds and schools that collect the largest number of cans will be awarded trophies and a complete new set of playground games and equipment.

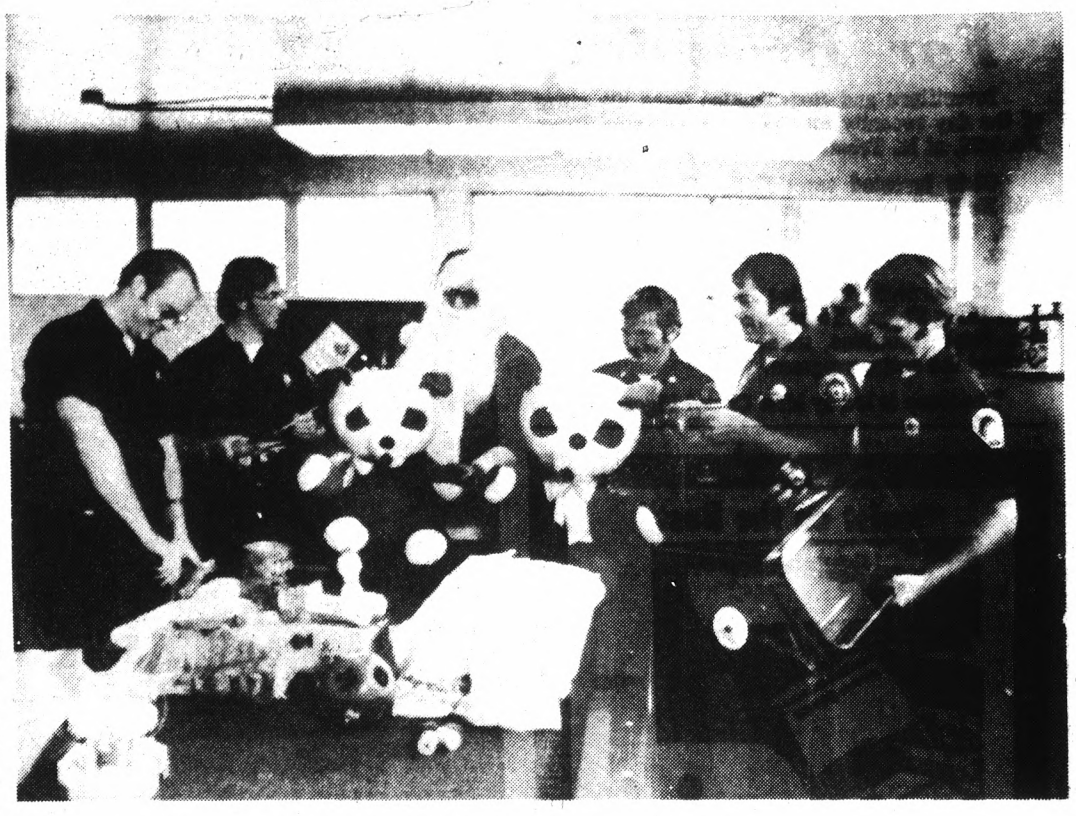
School playgrounds and parks participating in the drive are as follows: Robertson, George Washington, Lincoln Park, Westlake Park, M.H. Tobias, M.P. Brown, Marchbanks Park, Daniel Webster, F.D. Roosevelt, Panorama, Colma, Skyline and Gellert Park.

All food collected must be commercially canned or packaged foods. No home-canned foods, items that have been opened, or food requiring refrigeration, should be accepted.

For further information on this project to help others, call the Recreation Department at 992-5356.

Training

Navy Seaman Recruit Joseph O. Rozul, son of Mr. and Mrs. Pablo P. Rozul, of 94 Belhaven Ave., Daly City, has completed recruit training at the Naval Training Center, San Diego. A 1976 graduate of Serramonte High School, Daly City, he joined the Navy in August 1976.



SANTA'S HELPERS

Santa and some of his helpers from the Daly City Fire Department are shown working on toys in preparation for Operation Santa Claus. Each year Firehouses in Daly City resemble Santa's workshop, as Operation Santa Claus rolls into high gear. This local project joins individuals, clubs, organizations and churches in an effort to provide their less fortunate friends and neighbors with some of the joys of Christmas. For 27 years this effort has endeavored to provide all Daly City needy families with a Christmas dinner and toys for the children. Last year more than 300 families were cared for by Operation Santa Claus. Contributions may be sent to 923 90th Street, Daly City, Ca 94015.

SMALL TALK:

Roger Metzger, the regular Houston shortstop for the past six years, is acknowledged as one of the best at his position in the big leagues. From the time he was in high school, until September of this past season, he had never played another position. In 1976, he made only 10 errors at shortstop, and covered the position like a blanket, as usual.

Yet, in late September, Astro manager Bill Virdon shifted Metzger to second base so that he could get a good look at rookie shortstop Alex Taveras, just 20-years-old. Did Metzger, just 28 himself, pout and refuse to make the move? Did he ask to be traded, or accuse Virdon of alienation of affection?

Metzger said, "I'm glad Virdon has enough confidence in me to put me at a position I'm not accustomed to playing. I'm just happy to be in the lineup. I'll even volunteer to catch, if it'll keep me in the ball game."

Are you listening, Chris Speier?

I'M TIRED OF ATHLETES who complain that they never get a chance and then get their chance and don't produce. They are benched again, and then complain that they never get a chance! Some kids just seem to have gotten the idea that they are owed the chance to screw things up. They never seem to grasp the hard fact that they are played and paid to produce, and no excuses.

The test of any great player is his ability to adjust. The fast ball pitcher loses some steam in late career, and comes up with another pitch. The wide receiver loses a step or two, but learns better moves, and how to run more precise pass routes. And Rick Barry, losing a bit of spring in his legs, decides it's futile to ALWAYS stick with that jump shot, and gives the opposition something else to think about, by coming up with the old fashioned set shot.

LOCAL NOTES:

San Francisco State's Physical Education and Athletics Department recently inducted six new members into its second annual Hall of Fame ceremony. The inductees were:

Floyd Peters (why didn't he make it the first time?), the former Little All-American tackle, and first San Francisco Gator to make the East-West Game, who went on to All-Pro recognition in the NFL and is now the defensive line coach for the 49ers.

Funke De Egnoff, who was State's fencing coach from 1949 until his death in 1965. De Egnoff was a nationally known fencing master.

Ronald English, an outstanding tennis player from 1933 to 37, who later served the school as a teacher, coach and administrator for 33 years. He retired as an assistant superintendent of Napa Community College in 1972.

Ray Kaufman, who competed as a student in baseball, football and track from '33 to 37, and then served as a physical education teacher and track and football coach from 1941 to 73.

SUE GREEN ROSENBURG, an outstanding athlete who played guard on State's undefeated women's basketball team in 1963 to 64, was a member of the tennis team, field hockey squad, and pitched and played outfield for the softball team.

Doris Holz, a graduate of the class of '24, who was the head of the swimming program. She designed and taught the first recreation course, titled "Community Recreation," at San Francisco State, and helped design the present swimming pool, which has been in use since 1950. She has taught a total of 22 different physical education, health education and recreation classes.

BOB LANGE, a former Terra Novan, has proven to be not only one of Skyline College's top cross country runners for the past two seasons, but one of the Coast Conference's, as well. All this, and he's only 5'2" and 120 pounds, which proves that the size of one's heart has nothing to do with the size of its casing.

And while we're on former Terra Nova distance runners, let it be here noted that John Moreno and Skyline College's Rich Hornstra, both ran 9:42's to win the Fifth Annual Turkey Trot two mile race in Pacifica over the Thanksgiving holidays. Moreno won in the 21-30 age group, Hornstra, of San Mateo, in the 16-20 year age group.

Brian Tuohy, a junior from Sacred Heart, who proved himself to be one of the best football players in the WCAL this past season, is the son of Bill and Bev Touhy, the latter of whom runs the San Bruno office of the San Mateo Times.

Like her 6-1, 190 pound son (he took over at quarterback as a last minute replacement in early season, and never having played the position, completed seven of nine passes for 114 yards and a touchdown), Bev is versatile.

She answers the phone, takes ads, types, acts as a receptionist, moves furniture, runs errands, dispenses food and drink recipes, and most important, manages to laugh at every one of reporter Frank LaPierre's jokes, which in itself is a career. (Late flash: her latest accomplishment — delivering a litter of her Great Dane's pups. "Listening to Frank's jokes were good preparation," adds Bev, who sees good in everything.)

SPECIAL MOMENTS IN SPORTS:

Most great institutions, it is said, have had humble beginnings, and possibly no great institution has had a more humble beginning than the National Football League.

It all began on September 17, 1920, in the showroom — garage may be a more accurate term — of an automobile agency in Canton, Ohio. This is what led up to it:

George Halas, a former college football player who had been the New York Yankee right fielder for a month in 1919, until he injured his hip sliding, had been hired to coach the semi-professional football team of the Stanley Storch works.

But Halas was having problems arranging a suitable schedule. There was no organized professional football league. Halas suggested to Ralph Hay, who operated the Canton Bulldogs, that it might be a good idea if a group of the best teams got together and formed a league.

Hay brought Stan Cofall, manager of the Massillon Tigers, in on the proposal, and they and Halas called a meeting of the managers of the eleven pro clubs at Hay's automobile agency in Canton.

The biggest room in the agency was the showroom, so they decided that that would be the proper meeting place. But it had no chairs. So the managers of the future NFL, balanced atop fenders and lounging on running boards, formed the NFL.

Actually, the original name of the league — which it was to retain for two years — was the American Professional Football Association. To lend name recognition and prestige to the organization, they elected Jim Thorpe as president.

To give the new league an aura of financial stability, they announced that the club membership fees were $100, although Halas admitted years later that no money ever changed hands, because, as he said, "I doubt if there was a hundred bucks in the whole room."

Yes, the forming of the National Football League, in a glorified garage was, indeed, one of sports' most special — if humble — moments.

Westmoor Girls Qualify for CCS

Westmoor swimmers Mitzi Bipes, Terry Kraemer, Shawn Murray, Monica Theis and Renee Theis all qualified with varsity Central Coast Sectional (CCS) times. Bonnie McMillan qualified in the Frosh-Soph Division. This is the first time in the school's history that any girl has achieved times allowing them to attend CCS.

Central Coast Sectionals includes such areas as Santa Clara and San Jose, whose programs are some of the most competitive in the nation.

Linda Jezek, a competitor in the 1976 Olympic Games, is an example of the competition the Westmoor Girls faced last weekend at Gundersen High School in San Jose. The meet ran over a two day period with the preliminaries on Friday and the finals on Saturday.

Terry Kraemer was the only member of the team who placed well enough in the prelimiaries to qualify for CCS. Miss Kraemer, the NPL men's Frosh-Soph record holder in the 100 backstroke, swam in the 200 Medley Relay, 100 Freestyle, and the 100 Backstroke, the latter in which she was ranked high enough to attend finals.

The girls swim program at Westmoor had its best season this year, placing second in the league after only two years. "I was really proud of the entire team this year. They really put a lot of time and effort," said Coach Sylvia Barn. "Six girls making CCS is just the end to a great season."

Leah Conser is Free Throw Star

The Elks National Free Throw Contest, co-sponsored by the Daly City Recreation Department, was held recently at Westmoor High School Gym. for both boys and girls ages 8 through 13.

The first place winners from each division will advance to the Area Finals to be held at Serramonte High School Dec. 11. And from there, the winners advance to the District Finals.

Leah Conser, a 10-year-old girl who attends FDR Grammar School, was the star of the show. Not only did Leah pop through 18 out of 25 free throws for the contest, but, in addition, made all five of her practice shots, giving her a total of 23 of 30 for a very impressive 77 per cent.

Following right behind Leah, was Tom Giammona from MP Brown Playground. Tom won the 12 and 13-year-old division by sinking 17 of 25.

RESULTS are as follows: 8-9 year old Boys — Winner Tony Silva (9-25), followed by Miguel Sanchez and Eric Tuialuuluu.

10-11 Year old Girls — Winner — Leah Conser (18-25), followed by Cathy Turbin, Melissa Candau, Leslie Maxie, Penny Fonti.

10-11 year old Boys; Winner — Meney Cruz (14-25), followed by Roger Hicks, John Turner, Mike Ehling, Troy Nickelson, Tony Welsh.

12-13 year old Girls; Winner — Barbara Madrieres (16-25).

12-13 year old Boys; Winner — Tom Giammona (17-25), followed by Mike Candau, Mike Bell, Terry Walker, Tony Moody, Tom Solorzano.

Dorn Heads Team

Post All-County

By CHRISTOPHER STAVE
Sports Writer

There's something a little disarming about a football player who wears glasses — you think for a second that the guy's ducked out on his piano lessons to play with the big boys.

But if defenders ever got that impression of Westmoor High quarterback Jack Dorn this year, they soon lost it. Dorn either passed or ran on 249 separate occasions in 11 games this year — and averaged 5.93 yards per play.

That adds up to 2,070 yards, by far the best total offense figure in the County this season. And that's one big reason why Dorn, who led the Rams to a North Peninsula League title, has been chosen Player of the Year on the 1976 Times All-County Football team.

Dorn was a dangerous scrambler, and wound up with 486 rushing yards. But the bespectacled 6-0, 180-pound senior really excelled in Westmoor's wide-open passing offense — a double wing that could put four receivers out on patterns in a hurry.

Dorn completed 113 of 200 passes (57 per cent) for 1,584 yards and 15 touchdowns.

Joining Dorn on the first team offense were Ram senior wide receiver John Smith (5-9, 165) and senior tackle Greg Fatooh (6-4, 215). Receiver Marcel Crossland was an honorable mention choice.

Burlingame, the Mid-Peninsula champ, the Peninsula Bowl winner over Westmoor and the top-ranked team in the County, landed two first-team picks and four more on honorable mention.

The first-team choices were offensive tackle Steve Judge (a 6-3, 190 senior) and linebacker Dan Williams (a 6-2, 200 senior who was also a standout tight end). Panthers on the honorable mention list were receiver Larry Hawkins, fullback Jeff Black, quarterback Rusty McDowell and linebacker Brian Peagler.

The offensive line was somewhat bigger than All-County lines of the past, but the average — 6-1½, 201 pounds — was pulled down a little by one guard choice, El Camino's Rick Tenerowicz (5-9, 188). But the Colt senior did just fine against bigger folks, and helped open a lot of the holes that made Dennis Cowen the NPL's top rusher.

Cowen was also a first-team choice.

Another guard-running back combination to make first team was the Marty Leahy-Bob Pyne duo from Aragon. Pyne, a 5-9, 165-pound senior, led all County rushers with 1,096 yards in nine games (Cowen gained 1,035 in 10). Leahy (a 6-3, 195 senior) didn't open all the holes — but he did more than his share, both offensively and defensively.

Rounding out the backfield was big (6-2, 222) senior Serra fullback Steve Venditti. Venditti's statistics in the West Catholic Athletic League don't seem impressive — he ranked third with 329 yards for a 4.6 average — but people who watched Serra play County teams were always impressed by Venditti's bruising power. Overall Venditti carried 136 times for 698 yards.

Burlingame's Black boasted the best average of any back in the County with an appreciable number of carries — better than six yards. But, due to an injury, Black was used sparingly for the first Four games, and didn't see much action.

Tight end selection Dennis Haskins of Capuchino made everybody's list. Haskins, a 6-0, 190-pound three-sport star, set MPL single season records for receptions (27) and yards (480). Ironically, Haskins' first record eclipsed one by last year's All-County receiver from Cap — Russ Slotnick.

The wide receiver picks were Westmoor senior John Smith (5-9, 165) and Serra senior Ken Meyeroieck (6-0, 1700. Smith, one of many fine Ram catchers, also did some important ball-carrying chores from his wingback spot.

The last (but not necessarily least) offensive first-teamer was South San Francisco senior lineman Marco Manzanares (6-1, 219). Manzanares didn't make first-team all-NPL, but South City didn't get many choices — the Warriors, uncharacteristically, finished last. However, several coaches and scouts who watched North County linemen all year kept coming up with the same image: "That Number 50 from South San Francisco." They can be excused for forgetting the name.

The defensive first team was dominated by the MPL and the South Peninsula Athletic leagues, in which defenses controlled a great many games.

The prime exception was Terra Nova senior Don Howard, a 6-2, 252-pound lineman who was the first choice of every coach, writer and scout consulted.

Two interior linemen from the SPAL were Jack Lewis (a 6-3, 195-pound senior) from SPAL co-champ Carlmont and Butch Whitaker (a 6-2, 205-pound senior) from SPAL co-champ Woodside. Filling out the line — amply — were Hillsdale's Donald Mack (5-9, 204, one of the Knights' few seniors) and Mills' Rick Sundberg (a 6-1, 195-pound senior).

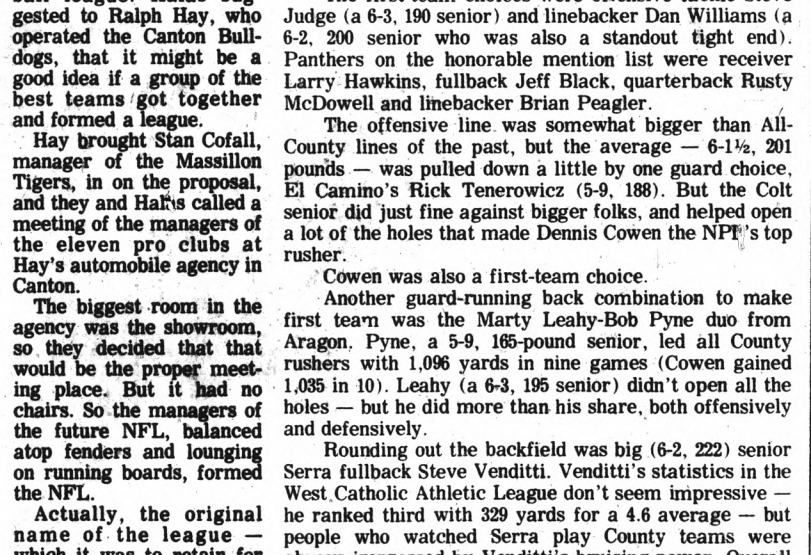
There was more competition at the linebacker positions than at any otker this year. Hillsdale junior Vinny Roche (5-10, 180) was the only underclassman among the 24 overall first-team choices.

The other two linebackers, Burlingame's Williams and Serra's Mike Giotinis (5-11, 188-pound senior) were the only repeaters from last year's first-team squad. One local coach said Giotinis was the best local linebacker he'd seen in the 1970s.

San Carlos' Gary Davenport, like Manzanares, was a standout on a less than stupendous team, and the 5-10, 160-pound senior was a unanimous defensive back choice. Menlo School's Kevin Bass (a 5-11, 178-pound senior) was another unanimous choice — the only problem was where to put him. He played quarterback, running back, linebacker and defensive back for the Oaks, and was creditable at all spots. He made All-County as a DB.

First-team defensive back Mike Vernali led the MPL in interceptions with six in six games . For the second straight year, Vernali stole three passes in a single game.

The last defensive back choice, 6-1, 195-pound Serramonte senior Dan Lara, was probably better known (or at least more visible) as one of the County's best quarterbacks, but was a standout defensively as well.



PLAYER OF THE YEAR

A disconsolate Jack Dorn of Westmoor High, the Post's football Player of the Year, is congratulated after recent Peninsula Bowl game by victorious Coach Bob Booker of Burlingame High.

Health Brainstorming Draws Up Priorities

Some 75 professionals and concerned members of the public gathered Saturday at the College of San Mateo for a day-long conference dealing with the future of community mental health.

The conference, sponsored by the county's Mental Health Advisory Board, had been designed to gather community input on problems with the present level of mental health programs. Few members of the public attended.

Instead, as several speakers suggested, the majority of the participants were mental health professionals and staff.

After welcoming remarks by Supervisor John Ward and Mental Health Division Program Chief Mike Rankin, the participants broke into small discussion groups to generate ideas.

The format was one of brainstorming, where participants were invited to make suggestions for improvement in a variety of mental health programs.

Following a luncheon, the groups reconvened to draw up what they felt were fitting priorities for ideas expressed in the morning sessions.

After the priorities are established, they will be studied by the Mental Health Advisory Board, which will make recommendations to the Board of Supervisors regarding what is needed in county mental health services.

Buses Set For Kaiser

Bus service to Kaiser Hospital in South San Francisco will begin Dec. 6, the San Mateo County Transit District has announced.

Service in both directions on El Camino Real will reach the hospital via South San Francisco's Winston Manor route. The Westborough bus also will take passengers directly to the hospital.

Southbound from Winston Manor, buses will arrive at Kaiser at 34 minutes past the hour. From Buri Buri, hospital arrival time is 47 minutes past the hour. Buri Buri will be the central Kaiser transfer point from all South San Francisco buses.

Detailed schedules on Kaiser service will be available at the hospital, on local buses and at City Hall and the Chamber of Commerce office. The SamTrans telephone information center also has details.

All the News That's Fit

By RICK SULLIVAN

As chief of security of the San Francisco Jail in San Bruno, Bill Davis has strong feelings about limits to human freedoms.

Sixteen years of observing and controlling social misfits has eroded many of his youthful, more idealistic beliefs. Davis has come to learn that liberty cannot be taken too seriously in an atmosphere of potential violence and sometimes irrational behavior.

Take, for example, the single, most cherished freedom which is the cornerstone of a free society — the untempered ability to express oneself in speech or through the press.

Davis squints his eyes, leans easily into an office chair, crosses two arms over his barrel chest and proclaims:

"Prisoners have proven they can't exist peacefully with the freedoms in our society. They have abused their freedoms and I can't see giving them freedom of speech in a jail community."

Davis' comment is an extemporaneous one, not really reflective of what he later says is his underlying belief, that freedom of expression in a prison community is acceptable as long as articles are not "controversial" to the point that they create a security problem.

The chief was spurred to comment on prison freedoms this week when a newly created inmate newspaper published an article that sparked some friction between the prisoners and the staff.

The article pitted members of the Prisoners Health Project (PHP) against Dr. William Mandel, director of the Medical Services Treatment (MST) group, Department of Public Health.

The PHP was formed to deliver health services to inmates at the jail. The MST oversees all health programs.

The prisoners, according to the newspaper, support the PHP and are upset that the MST wants to exert greater authority over the prison program.

Davis says that since the newspaper, "The San Bruno Highlights," began publishing some four months ago, he has been pleasantly surprised at its quality and content.

But he watches the paper closely for any hint that it might evolve into a revolutionary organ, similar to one that was published at the jail several years ago. That paper, says Davis, "nearly caused a riot."

It was earlier this year that Steve Steiner, a jail rehabilitation counselor, and Sandra Miller, a journalism teacher with the San Francisco Community College District, decided to publish an inmate newsletter.

Miss Miller teaches journalism classes at the jail every weekday from 8:30 to 11:30 a.m. to anyone of the 350 inmates who wishes to learn.

"The main idea (for starting the paper)" says Steiner, "was to get the inmates involved in writing about things that happen in the jail — to inform people of the programs here and to write personal profiles on the inmates themselves."

Adds Miss Miller, "The paper, we thought, would be a good tool for teaching basic English skills and also be an exciting way of turning people on to reading."

Steiner says that he talked to San Francisco Sheriff Richard Hongisto about the role of the newsletter, and that the sheriff endorsed it. He says the sheriff agreed it would be a good learning program at the jail.

So the newsletter was created, and inmates became involved in every phase of publishing a paper, the writing, editing and printing. The only phase of newspaper production not handled by the inmates is the typesetting of articles. That work is done outside the jail.

Over the months, the newspaper has grown from a bulletin to an 18-page tabloid-size paper that is published about every four weeks.

And as the writers and counselors become more adept at journalistic skills, the paper's contents expanded to include poetry, feature stories, a section on how to land a job and, now, in-depth news stories.

It is this latter area that makes Chief Davis a little nervous.

"I get concerned," the chief comments, "when stories are published that might create danger in a prison atmosphere. Controversial stories tended to breed prisoner causes and this can be dangerous.

"It's kind of like this," he adds, "you don't give a child molester a stack of dirty books to read. It tends to incite him."

Steiner and Miss Miller acknowledge they are aware of the danger a newspaper not closely supervised and edited can pose for the security staff and the inmates. They scrutinize all articles submitted by the inmates with security in mind.

"We don't touch anything that we are convinced will endanger the jail community," Steiner says.

However, both advisors find it hard to escape the fact that the function of a newspaper is to print the news of a given community, and to tell the truth. This, by its nature, breeds controversy — and this is exactly what troubles Chief Davis.

"When you print a newspaper, you can't help but step on people's toes sometimes, and prisoners have just as much right as anyone else to express their thoughts," says Steiner.

Both Steiner and Miss Miller argue that if an article gets into the paper that does indeed stir bad feelings, then Sheriff Hongisto's office must take responsibility for it.

All articles are read and edited by employes in the sheriff's office in San Francisco before they are printed.

But Davis says he believes the sheriff's office is out of touch with what's really happening in the jail, and maintains that the custody staff at the jail should also screen stories.

"We work with the inmates every day," says Davis. "We know how prisoners react to things."

"Hey, don't get me wrong," Davis tells the two workers during their altogether amiable discussion. "I like the paper, I think it can do good things for the people here. It's just that I don't like some of the stories. I can't help it, I'm in charge of security here."

Stanford Faculty Club To Exhibit Primitives

(Dave Dornias Photo)

SALE ITEMS

Mrs. William Miller, Mrs. Larry Ahern, Mrs. John Hughes, Miss B. West and Mrs. Richard Hutchison, from left, display some of the items that will be e for sale at the Westlake Catholic Women's Christmas Boutique and Cookie-Candy Sale, which will be held in Our Lady of Mercy Parish Hall, Dec. 11 and 12, after all Masses.

The Stanford Faculty Club will exhibit the works of the peasant primitive painter Dragan Bobovec of the Podravina Region of Yugoslavia through the month of December.

The club is located on Lagunita Drive at Stanford University.

Like so many of the naive, or primitive painters of the Hlebine School of painting, Bobovec, 26, is self-taught. The unique school of art has produced such acclaimed artists as Ivan Generalic, Ivan Vecenaj and Miljo Kovacic. Their works are included in the collections of museums throughout Europe, including the Vatican, and are in the private collections of Princess Margaret, actor Yul Brynner and many others.

The Smithsonian is slated to start a nationwide tour of the Croatian primitives in 1977.

Meanwhile, Bobovec's works are being introduced to the American art public by educator and lecturer Edward Leschyn of Belmont.

He has been a frequent visitor to Yugoslavia, where he has become a close friend of many of the famed painters. Interestingly, a majority of them still work on their small farms, saving late afternoons and evenings for their paintings. The price of some of their art work ranges in five figures.

Issue of The Place Qualifies For the Ballot

By RICK SULLIVAN

San Brunans opposed to an ordinance that allows for the expansion of The Place apartment complex have successfully gathered enough voter signatures to qualify the issue for the ballot.

According to City Clerk Terri Rasmussen, the signatures of 2,132 registered voters in San Bruno have been counted and verified. The signatures, Ms. Rasmussen said, represent more than the legal number of registered voters — 10 per cent — needed to force a ballot measure.

Ms. Rasmussen said she would present the City Council with an affidavit at its next regular meeting Dec. 13 verifying the signature count and also a statement advising what action the council must take according to state law.

State code provides that if a referendum petition is successful, the governing body must either repeal the ordinance in its entirety or submit it to the voters at the next regular municipal election or at a special election.

Petition circulators presented voter signatures to the city clerk's office Nov. 23. Douglas Dawkins, who headed the petition drive, said he had counted 2,298 signatures gathered by himself and many other volunteers over the past four months.

The next regular municipal election in San Bruno will not be held until March of 1978. Ms. Rasmussen, however, said that the city could try to combine a city election on The Place issue with the school district election March 8 next year.

According to state law, a special election must be held within 74 to 89 days after a decision to hold an election is made.

Dawkins began the petition drive shortly after the City Council approved by a 3-2 vote the rezoning of a seven-acre parcel at the corner of Cherry Avenue and Sneath Lane. The rezoning allowed the Lincoln Properties Co. to expand The Place apartment complex by 176 units.

Dawkins and others maintain that the parcel should not be used for apartments but instead for a light industrial use since the latter use would contribute more property tax revenue to the city.

Dawkins claims that apartment complexes in San Bruno are not reassessed as often as single-family homes and that the proposed 176 units would not provide enough tax revenue to pay for increases in city services the apartment would require.

The San Bruno Chamber of Commerce, which backs The Place expansion, disagrees.

Chamber Executive Director Gerald Chandler maintains that the expansion will increase city revenue because it will bring as much as $200,000 in spendable income to local businesses.

Chandler believes that spiralling housing costs are forcing youth and senior citizens out of the city and says it is "imperative" that ample rental housing be made available for these citizens.

The director maintains that the overwhelming majority of merchants in the community favor The Place expansion. He said that a recent Chamber survey shows that 85 per cent of those who responded backed the expansion.

Batik Display Slated

Batik art — wax designs on fabric, followed by dye baths for each successive color — will be on display through Dec. 24 at the Periwinkle Art Gallery, Pacifica.

The six artists who formed the Batik Guild in November, 1975, will display their work.

Artists and techniques include:

Marianna Hamilton, chairman of the Fine Arts Department, Mercy High School — showing five quilted batiks on silk.

Marjorie Berkowitz, former New York artist — images based on fantasy and often portraying human or animal figures in a dream-like setting.

Jillian Tyrrell, former teacher in England and Canada — a concentration on large batik pieces from smaller studies based on Celtic mythological sources, and Greek and Persian mythology.

Ow Yeong Hong Leong, from Malaysia — batik paintings rather than decorative designs.

Laurella Sherlock, batik artist and teacher — works of the human physical form evolved into idealized embodiments of a search for spiritual and physical transformation.

Susan Walker, native California artist combining fabric and batik techniques — exploring the sensuousness of cloth.

Brothers Arrested

San Bruno police Wednesday morning booked two sets of brothers on suspicion of possession of dangerous drugs, being under the influence of dangerous drugs and conspiracy.

Arrested at about 10 a.m. were Harold Eugene Wetzstein, 23, and his brother, Ronald John Wetzstein, 19, both of 3600 Elston Drive, San Bruno, and Paul Christian Snyder, 21, and his brother, Steven William Snyder, 25, both of 804 Hemlock, South San Francisco.

According to police, a witness had entered a restroom at a service station at 504 W. San Bruno Ave. and allegedly found the four preparing to take some drugs.

County Open To First-Rate Development

By VERN KROGH

"We are a mature county and our dynamic growth is over. But we must become a balanced community. Otherwise, we will have a wall-to-wall freeway community.

"As problems increase in San Francisco, San Mateo County has the opportunity to pick up first-rate office park developments. Let's master plan the county and keep high-density development in certain areas."

This is the view of Ray L. Wilbur III, assistant vice president and sales manager for the Coldwell Banker Commercial Brokerage Co. of San Francisco, who spoke recently to a general membership meeting of the San Mateo County Development Association.

The future development of the county, according to Wilbur, must go up.

By going up, Wilbur emphasizes, he does not mean high rise.

Rather, he means construction of office and commercial developments such as the Borel and Interland in San Mateo or the Bayhill Office Park in San Bruno.

These he defines as "mid-rise developments" which are esthetically pleasing, landscaped, multiple-use developments.

"There is very little land left," according to Wilbur, "but if the economy turns around and becomes prosperous again, how should we become prosperous? Not by growing as we are now by just flowing along.

"There must be more cooperation between major cities and the county — to decide which areas should be developed and which shouldn't."

The holder of a master's degree in city management, Wilbur, the grandson of Ray Lyman Wilbur, one of the most famous of Stanford University presidents, declares:

"I have always felt political officials should look ahead of time. But since BART and other fiascos I'm beginning to wonder. We must have a political public.

"There must be a trade-off someplace between no-growth and jobs. If there is no growth, there will be no jobs. We have reached the point where we have levelled off. We have halted development. But we must have limited development of the county. Political leaders must be aware.

"I have witnessed the trend in the past several years of companies moving from San Mateo County to the East Bay, Los Angeles, and out of state.

In an informal survey we did in 1975, we discovered that more than 30 firms moved out of South San Francisco alone. This was due to expansion needs, companies consolidating and companies going out of business.

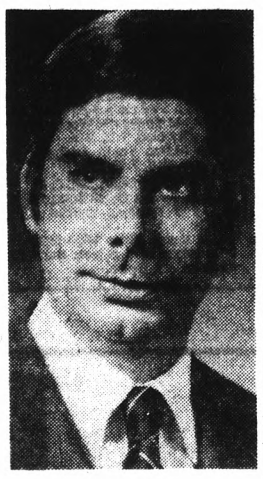
"San Mateo County is now finding itself in the position somewhat similar to San Francisco. That is, too little and too expensive land for new industrial buildings. If a company wants to expand its industrial building in San Mateo County it might find land costs $3 per square foot, while it can go to Santa Clara County to pay $1 to $1.50 per square foot or to Alameda County and pay $1 to $2 per square foot."

According to Wilbur, the peak years for new plants and expansions in the county was from 1964 to 1968. A recession occurred between 1971 and 1974, and, "We can see that the number of new plants and expansions is starting to decrease in 1974 and 1975 and 1976."

The same is true with the decreasing number of building permits in industrial, retail and office buildings.

Alameda and Contra Costa counties also show downward trends, Wilbur says, while Santa Clara County "goes up and down."

"If our industrial growth has reached its peak and is starting a downward trend, then where can future San Mateo residents be employed?" he asks.



RAY L. WILBUR III
'Balanced' Growth

"According to the San Mateo County Development Association over 100,000 people a day leave San Mateo County to work in other counties, particulary San Francisco. At the same time, approximately 55,000 people commute into San Mateo County — mainly to the San Francisco International Airport," he says.

"San Mateo County has a great opportunity to increase its share of white collar jobs due to the many problems you have been reading about in San Francisco, such as the need there for more tax revenues and the demands that will be put on the business community to help pay the city's bills."

Because residential land is already too high and open space must be preserved, Wilbur encourages that not only should office space go up, but residential as well — in the form of apartments and condominiums.

"It appears to me that if we want to increase the number of jobs in San Mateo County we will have to look more at the white collar job opportunities and employment in the high technology areas that have blossomed so well in Santa Clara County," he says.

"Now," Wilbur concludes, "we should decide where and how the county's residents are to be employed in the future and take political action steps towards that end."

Woman Victim of $1,000 Pigeon Drop

A San Bruno woman was the victim of a $1,000 "pigeon drop," according to a report filed Sunday with the police department.

Police said the woman was approached by another women, who identified herself as Betty Walker, while she was shopping at the J. C. Penney store at the Tanforan Shopping Center about 1 p.m. last Thursday.

According to police, the Walker woman told the victim she (Walker) had a friend who had found a purse and she asked the victim to come to the restroom to be a witness as to the contents of the purse.

The "friend," who called herself Mamie Jackson, suggested the three go out to the victim's car because the restroom was too crowded.

At the car, police said, the purse was opened and allegedly contained several thousand dollars. The victim told police she saw $1,000 and "other money in the roll."

In addition, police said, was an alleged letter read by one of the women, which alluded to a "horse race" and stated there was $3,000 in the purse.

According to police, the two women then convinced the victim they ought to ask Jackson's "boss" what to do with the money.

And, police said, as with similar con situations, the alleged "boss" said they ought to split the money, but there would be a need for "good faith" money, which the victim, must provide.

According to police, when the victim provided the necessary funds, the two other women conveniently disappeared, and she was out $1,000.

Skeleton Identified

The skeleton of a youth found Thanksgiving Day in a remote area east of El Granada was identified Tuesday as that of William Matthew Werder, 16, the grandson of the late County Supervisor William M. Werder.

According to Coroner's Investigator Steve Hortin, the identification had been made difficult because the youth's dental charts had been destroyed in a fire at the Half Moon Bay Medical-Dental Center some months ago. But earlier charts were located Tuesday in the office of a Redwood City dentist.

The skeleton was found by two boys, 12 and 13, as they explored a creek bed some three-quarters of a mile east of the Peninsula Peace Officers Association Ranch in El Granada. One of the boys carried out the skull, and deputies and Hortin crawled in on their hands and knees the following day to bring out the rest of the skeleton.

According to Sheriff's Inspector Rudy Siemssen, the youth, the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Werder Jr. of Moss Beach, had threatened suicide and had disappeared Feb. 18, 1975.

Burglary Stymied

Two alert San Bruno housewives are credited by police with preventing a possible daylight burglary Wednesday.

The unidentified women became suspicious when they saw two men at the back door of a nearby residence in the 400 block of Cunningham Way.

Police responded to the scene after one of the women telephoned the station at about noon. The two apparent burglars, however, were frightened away and were gone before police arrived.

Police said the back door of the home had been pried open but nothing was reported taken. A roadblock, based on a description of a car the women had given police, also was unsuccessful in capturing the would-be burglars, police said.

Rash of Peninsula Holdups

A 36-year-old San Bruno woman was robbed at knife-point Friday afternoon at the San Bruno Tanforan Shopping Center parking lot, then bound and gagged and left in her own locked car in the most serious of a rash of holdups in the area. A shot was fired in a San Mateo holdup.

San Bruno police said her assailant was also a woman, who got away with the victim's purse and its contents of credit cards and $1.50.

According to police, the victim was approached shortly before 6 p.m. by a woman described as about 25-to-28 years old, weighing 120 pounds, with brown hair and brown eyes.

This woman, police said, produced a 5-inch hunting knife and ordered the victim into her own car. After taking the purse, the assailant taped the victim's mouth and her hands behind her back and left her lying face down on the front seat. She then locked the car and left, police said.

In an unrelated strong arm robbery with a knife, police said a 13-year-old boy was relieved of $2.15 by two knife-wielding boys described as being 14 and 15 years old, at the intersection of Oak and Jenevein at about 11 p.m.

A gunman armed with a .25-caliber automatic pistol robbed a San Mateo market of $40 early this morning, and fired a shot at the store's clerk which missed, police said today.

The incident occurred at 3:21 a.m. at the Stop 'n' Go Market, 336 S. Norfolk St, police reported.

The clerk reported a man described as Latino, 27, standing 5 feet 7 inches tall, wearing a stocking over his head and having a scraggly goatee entered the store and produced the pistol.

The gunman ordered the clerk to give him all his cash, and the clerk complied. The guman then fired a shot at the clerk, which missed its mark.

The gunman then ran from the store and leaped into a 1964 Buick described as white or light yellow, which was driven by another man, witnesses reported. The vehicle fled westbound on Third Avenue.

A countywide roadblock was quickly put into effect, but the robbers apparently eluded police, a spokeman said this morning.

Shortly before midnight, San Carlos police reported, a man and woman, the woman armed with a .38 caliber revolver, entered the Quik Stop Market at 491 Laurel St. and robbed it of $50 in $1 and $5 bills, San Carlos police reported.

The woman, described as about 26 to 27-years and with her brown hair cut in a shag to the middle of her back, carried out the money in a paper bag, according to officers. She and her companion, reported to be 28 to 29-years and with a full beard, were last seen walking southbound on Laurel Street, police said.

A bandit threatened Daniel Belluomini, 64, a clerk at Dial Liquors at 320 El Camino Real, to "blow your brains out," as he robbed the store of $100 in cash and checks about 9:40 p.m., Redwood City police said.

Suit in Hospital Fall

A Burlingame man is suing Peninsula hospital for allegedly allowing his wife to fall off an emergency room examining table, resulting in injuries which contributed to her death.

Wallace L. Mannheim, 216 Myrtle Road, has filed suit in San Mateo County Superior Court against both the hospital and Dr. Newton J. Harband, allegedly the attending physician.

Mannheim's suit, filed by San Francisco attorney Ida O. Abbott, asks for "general damages" in an amount to be determined in court plus $8,650 for medical and funeral expenses.

The suit notes that Mannheim did file a claim with the hospital's directors, and that the claim had been rejected.

In the complaint, Mannheim alleges that his wife Madelyn B. Mannheim, 68, was taken to Peninsula Hospital Nov. 3, 1975 in a "sleepy, weak" and "less than fully conscious condition" from an illness.

While she was in this condition, the suit states, she was "left in such a manner that she fell" from the examining table, resulting in injuries to her skull.

Mrs. Mannheim had to undergo surgery, the suit states, which worsened her illness, and she died Nov. 12, 1975.

A copy of the official San Mateo County death certificate for Mrs. Mannheim, states that the cause of her death was "acute bronchopneumonia" due to or as a consequence of "severe cerebral edema" (or swelling) following skull surgery, and due to or as a consequence of "cerebral arteriosclerosis with massive intracerebral hemorrhage."

Reception For Duffey

Friends of James Duffey, the Burlingame fireman who is retiring after a career as off-duty, part-time Santa Claus and long-time baseball participant, are planning a Dec. 19 reception to honor him.

Members of the Burlingame Fire Department are accepting reservations for the 4 to 10 p.m. reception at the Burlingame Recreation Center.

Anyone wishing to take part may contact "Tex" Patterson or Jim Edwards at Fire Department headquarters.

New Sentencing Law Being Studied

California's attempt to provide specified prison sentences for convicted criminals is being watched across the nation, but nowhere is it being studied as carefully as it is in California.

So said officials attending Friday's Burlingame luncheon meeting of the San Mateo County chapter of the California Probation, Parole, and Corrections Association.

J.J. Enomoto, director of the state's Department of Corrections, said the nation is watching California's attempt to end the indefinite sentencing produced over the past many years.

He said other states had been working toward ending their own indeterminant sentencing laws, when California's legislature approved Senate Bill 42.

Judges police officials and probations or corrections officers from as far away as Fresno listened to Enomoto's description of the new law. Several expressed concerns about its effect upon their various occupations.

"We needed experience," Enomoto said, "we need to work with it a while, before we know what it is actually going to do."

He said some people are predicting that SB 42 "will release hordes of hardened criminals upon the citizens of California within the next couple of years, and commented that "this is not so."

Enomoto said that according to his best projections, California's prison population will continue to rise for the next several years, as it has been rising over the past several years.

"The essence of Senate Bill 42," he said, "had to do with the increasing disenchantment of a lot of people with the sentencing structure that existed."

Although it is not his role to commsnt on legislation, the Director of Corrections said, he believes that "inmates need to know what length of time they are going to have to serve for the crime they are convicted of.

"This is what they deserve as human beings," he said, "too many people were floundering around, not knowing what to expect."

Enomoto said his Department will find ways to cope with the new law. He aaid there will be no mass lay-offs of state parole officers and other personnel, until a thorough review of the department's operations is made. He said he hopes improvements in the system can follow rather than a budget slashing.

Governor Brown, Enomoto reported, has named a "blue ribbon committee" to put Senate Bill 42 into effect, and promised the assembled law officers and probation personnel that they would get some guidance before the law takes effect July 1.

"It seems logical to me," he said, "that we have to do a better job of serving helping these people, the inmates, in preparing thems to get back on the streets."

Some experts predict the so-called "light criminals" will get shorter sentences, he said, while the those convicted of more serious crimes will get heavier sentences than they do now. Again, Enomoto insisted "we won't know until we see how the judges apply the law."

What truly needs to be done, he said, is "to look at the programs we've been conducting in prisons, to help people get back on the streets without being worse criminal.

"A prison is a damn punishing place," he said, "and the period of punishment is supposed to be the punishment, the deprivation of freedom."

His plan, he said, would to build no more "concrete monstrosities," such as San Quentin and Folsom prisons. Instead, there would be smaller prisons scattered about the state, each handling all types of prisoners and thus ending busing the different types around the state to separate institutions.

Enomoto, who served 18 months during World War II in internment camps in the United States for Japanese-American citizens , said:

"Any thinking person recognizes that San Quentin and Folsom have got to be phased out."

He said this will not happen, "in our lifetime."

He pledged his department will work with local probation departments, police officers, and the courts, to adapt the new Senate Bill 42 to California, as painlessly as possible.

S. Bruno Paramedic Studies

Preliminary planning for a new emergency care program is underway in San Bruno.

City Manager Gerald Minford and Fire Chief Harper Peterson over the next month will develop a paramedic program design study and try to determine exactly the minimum number of additional fire fighters needed to put paramedics on the streets.

Wednesday night, Councilmen Tony Governale and Richard Griffith, who comprise a subcommittee of the council, met with Minford, Peterson and two fire fighters to discuss the cost of starting a city-operated paramedic program.

The meeting grew out of a special public hearing last month to discuss what benefits San Bruno would derive from the county's newly created emergency services program by the Los Angeles-based firm Medevac.

The hearing had been called by Governale. He has repeatedly expressed concern that Medevac might not be able to provide San Brunans with adequate service.

Governale said that at the Wednesday meeting the sub-committee and the staff reviewed a citywide paramedic proposal which had been submitted by San Bruno firemen Barry Franchi and Richard Havens.

That proposal essentially is modeled after one created in South San Francisco some two years ago. In that city, nine firemen act as specially trained paramedics providing emergency care anywhere within the city limits. Private ambulances transport patients to hospital.

Both Franchi and Havens have told the council that their program would not require the additional fire fighters.

The city staff, after evaluating the proposal, disagreed.

Governale said Minford and Peterson estimate the city will have to hire seven new firemen to provide paramedic service and to assure that the present level of fire fighting service is maintained.

The cost of seven new employes, Governale said, would be $168,000 per year. That represents a 17-cent increase in the tax rate.

"The feeling I get" said Governale, "is that the staff and the firemen want to get into paramedic service, based on the belief that we could provide better service to our people than Medevac.

"But the big concern is, can we afford to do it?"

The Medevac plan calls for one emergency care unit to service three cities. Medevac paramedics will treat and transport patients to a hospital. Cost of the service will be billed to the patients.

SF Concert Scheduled

The San Francisco Civic Chorale will perform Bach's "Sleepers, Wake," Beethoven's "Mass in C," and Benjamin Britten's "Saint Nicolas" with Daniel Parkerson, tenor soloist, Dec. 19, at 4 p.m. in the First Congregational Church, Post and Mason Streets.

The concert is sponsored by the San Francisco Art Commission and admission is free.

SSF Adopts Higher Business Fees

By JANET PARKER

South San Francisco business and industry owners will be paying more for operating licenses beginning in January.

The City Council voted 4-1 Wednesday night to adopt a new ordinance setting new license fees that will nearly double the current fees between now and 1979.

Only Councilman William Borba, who owns a South San Francisco business, voted against the fee increase.

"I can't see why we have to penalize the business people of South San Francisco for the problems in the budget," Borba said.

He said it's the fault of the city administrators that the 1976-77 budget was so difficult to balance. He called it poor housekeeping.

City Finance Director Bill Anderson had said the goal in restructuring business license fees is to at least double the amount of revenue the city now receives.

"I don't think an increase is going to help the situation in South San Francisco. We should tighten our belts, cut back the excessive spending," Borba said.

Despite the councilman's concerns, only a handful of local business officials attended the meeting to protest the rate hike.

The city has been studying an increase in license fees for more than a year, and the city manager has met with representatives of the Chamber of Commerce and the Peninsula Manufacturers' Association, which is in the city's industrial sector.

Since 1947, all businesses have been paying a municipal fee of $25 a year, the lowest in the county.

The minimum fee for most businesses beginning Jan. 1 will be $50 plus $3 for each employe. The maximum fee will be $500 on Jan. 1, 1977; $625 on Jan. 1, 1978; and $750 on Jan. 1, 1979.

Professional and semi-professional businesses, such as physicians and tax counselors, will pay $100 each.

General contractors will pay $100 and specialty contractors will pay $75.

Warehouse owners will pay $50 plus $3 per employe. Food delivery services will pay $200. Other delivery services will pay $50 plus $3 for each employe.

Peddlers will pay $280 a year and $10 a day for each person when there are more than two employes.

New fees have been set for other specialty businesses. One of the proposed business fees was challenged by Ralph Smith, owner of South San Francisco's only pawnshop.

Smith said the proposed fee for his business — an increase from $200 to $400 a year — was unjustified and unfair. He protested that the same business in San Francisco is charged only $100; in Daly City, $75, and in San Bruno, $65.

Smith said he performs a service for the city because he turns over to the police department stolen merchandise that comes through his store.

His plea for relief was answered by the councilmen, who voted to leave his annual fee at $200.

Another businessman, Dave Anderson, owner of a construction company, criticized a fee structure based upon the number of employes at a business.

Anderson said he could fire all 30 of his employes on Jan. 1 to avoid paying $90 and then rehire them.

"This is the most ridiculous thing I've ever heard of," Anderson said, although he agreed some kind of increase is overdue.

However, the city finance director squelched the suggestion to provide a loophole that would allow businesses to avoid paying the fee. He said the fee structure includes a provision for determing fees for seasonal businesses that don't hire the same number of employes all year.

Mayor Leo Padreddii defended the fee structure, saying "we came up with a solution that we thought would be equitable for big companies and little companies."

TAKING OVER DISTRICT WITH 22 SCHOOLS, 12,265 STUDENTS

New South San Francisco School Supt. Dr. Robert Kelly (right) sits down to his new job with board members Val Lambertson and John F. Dillon.

By JANET PARKER

A five-month search ended Monday night when the South San Francisco Unified School District Board of Trustees unanimously appointed Dr. Robert Kelly superintendent of the 22 schools.

Kelly, 48, officially accepted a 3½-year $39,500 contract and said he will be on the job Feb. 1.

The appointment was made before some 500 teachers and parents, many of whom served on an advisory committee that assisted in the search for a new superintendent.

Kelly, described as a strong supporter of special education, called the appointment the "culmination of a dream" to move to San Mateo County.

The new superintendent said he will be visiting schools and getting acquainted with district office staff during January.

Meanwhile, Assistant Supt. Tom Gaffney will continue to serve as acting superintendent.

Since 1974, Kelly has been superintendent of the 7,900-student Antelope Valley Union High School District in Lancaster. From 1969 to 1974, he was superintendent of the 25,000-pupil Chesterfield County Public Schools in Chesterfield, Va.

Prior to that, he was superintendent of another Virginia district with 102,000 students.

Kelly taught science and driver education from 1953 to 1960 at a school for the gifted in New York City.

He will succeed Dr. Paul Nielsen, who resigned on Aug. 30 to teach graduate school in Germany through the University of Southern california.

Kelly told the board and the capacity audience that he was honored to serve as superintendent of a district "of this size, this import and this potential."

Both the community advisory committee, led by Dr. Leonard Levine, and a professional screening committee chaired by Dr. Franklyn White, former superintendent of the Menlo Park Elementary School District, conducted extensive interviews and evaluations of top candidates. The district had received about 100 applications for the job.

"You can rest assured I did an in-depth study of you and the school system, too," Kelly said.

Board President Tom Henkle announced the appointment after a 1-hour executive session in which the details of Kelly's contract were hammered out. The minimum salary for the position advertised by the board was $38,000.

Henkle said the selection was a long and careful process that was "hard on the applicants, hard on the board and hard on the citizens' committee."

"All I can say, is that I'm sure glad this whole process is over," he said.

Trustee Ken Austin said he is glad the district will be starting afresh with an individual who has no previous connections with the city.

Kelly later told reporters he has little knowledge of conditions that led to a turbulent two-week teacher strike in 1975, nor of the aftereffects that have led to on-going litigation. However, he said, he plans to study the strike and its outcome.

The Board of Trustees, Kelly said, has asked him to compile a list of goals for the year to be presented at his first board meeting as superintendent.

"They (the board members) have asked me to come in with no preconceived notions about our administration, teachers and students," he said.

The new superintendent said a major factor that drew him to the SSFUSD was its special education program.

"If I have any sympathy for students, it's for special education students," he said. He called the SSFUSD program "superior."

"It will, under my administration, go to even greater heights," he said.

In a prepared release, the board noted Kelly's concern for communication in his administration. It was said he plans "innovative systems" to improve communication among district personnel, students and the community.

Communication programs would include the use of local newspapers, radio stations and special publications.

The Antelope Valley School Board accepted Kelly's resignation Monday afternoon.

One of the concerns expressed by the public in choosing Nielsen's successor was that the individual be familiar with the minority community.

Kelly said the Antelope Valley district is 20 per cent Chicano, 9 per cent black and 6 per cent other minorities.

His salary in that district was $35,000 a year.

Kelly holds a doctorate in education from the University of Tennessee in curriculum and instruction. He also holds masters degrees from the University of North Carolina in earth science and in safety administration from New York University.

His bachelor's degree was earned in 1953 with a major in physical education and a minor in biology.

The Antelope Valley district has three high schools and a continuation school. Kelly will be taking over a district with 12,265 students, 600 teachers and 400 non-teaching employes.

PLANNING THEIR FIRST BENEFIT

As members of the Chelsea Arts Ball Irregulars, a group that raises funds for the San Mateo County Arts Council, Mrs. Paul West Jr. (from left), Mrs. Michael Roskin, Mrs. Dick Hankins and Marian Sinton are planning work of their first, and hopefully annual, event New Year's Eve. Proceeds from "Cinema Nostalgia" will be contributed to the council.

HARD HATS AT WORK?

Not exactly. These four women may be dressed for the construction line but Mrs. Crawford Hill (from left), Jane Keyston, Mrs. A. C. Rodoni and Mrs. Walter Barra are merely pretending to finish work on the new international ballroom at the Airport Hilton. The reason for the "hoax" is to advertise the Chelsea Arts Ball Irregulars first benefit Dec. 31 in the ballroom.

Chelsea Arts Ball Set

The newly formed Chelsea Arts Ball Irregulars, the auxiliary to the San Mateo County Arts Council, will stage its first fundraiser Dec. 31 when it presents the Chelsea Arts Ball Revisited.

The New Year's Eve event will take place in the new ballroom at the Airport Hilton Hotel and will follow the theme "Cinema Nostalgia." In keeping with the theme guests are encouraged to dress as their favorite movie star or character and prizes will be awarded for the best costumes.

The evening will get underway at 8 p.m. when dinner is served. Dancing will be provided by The Squires from 9 o'clock to 1 a.m. and champagne will be served at midnight.

Rose Roskin, who is vice chairman of the San Mateo County Arts Council, is overall chairman of the ball which is being advertised as "the birth of a tradition" since members hope to make it an annual event. Reservations may be made through her or through the Arts Council which is located at 1219 Ralston Ave., Belmont. Inquiries also may be directed to Mrs. David Montgomery or Mrs. A. C. Rodoni.

Mini-Gallery Art Displays Announced

The San Mateo County Arts Council has announced the displays in the council's ur mini-galleries through the month of December.

- A group show of Mexican-American artists, collected by Jose Antonio Burciaga, is featured at Twin Pines Gallery.
- A collection of silk screens by Belmont artist Joe Price is being featured at Sundance Gallery.
- A collection of realist paintings by three Peninsula artists is on display at Octagon Gallery.
- "Landscape Visions" is the title of the display at Corridor Gallery.
